the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because auditory consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because olfactory consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because gustatory consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because tactile consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because mental consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because visually compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because aurally compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because nasally compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because lingually compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is without an essential nature [F.282.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because the earth element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the water element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the fire element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the wind element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the space element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because the consciousness element is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because ignorance is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because formative predispositions [F.283.a] are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because consciousness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because name and form are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the six sense fields are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because sensory contact is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because sensation is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because craving is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because grasping is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the rebirth process is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because birth is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because aging and death are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because the perfection of generosity is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the perfection of ethical discipline is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the perfection of tolerance is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the perfection of perseverance is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, [F.283.b] and because the perfection of meditative concentration is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because the emptiness of internal phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of external phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of emptiness is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of great extent is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of the unlimited is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of inherent nature is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of all phenomena is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, [F.284.a] because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of nonentities is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness of essential nature is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; [B21] because the applications of mindfulness are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the correct exertions are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the supports for miraculous ability are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the faculties are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the powers are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the branches of enlightenment are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because the noble eightfold path is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; because the truths of the noble ones are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the meditative concentrations [F.284.b] are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the immeasurable attitudes are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the formless absorptions are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the liberations are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the extrasensory powers are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the meditative stabilities are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the dhāraṇī gateways are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the powers of the tathāgatas are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the fearlessnesses are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the kinds of exact knowledge are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because great compassion is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are without an essential nature [F.285.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the fruit of once-returner is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the fruit of non-returner is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because arhatship is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because individual enlightenment is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are without an essential nature the perfection of wisdom is viewed as without an essential nature.

25.263 “Because beings are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because physical forms are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because feelings are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because perceptions are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because formative predispositions are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the eyes are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the ears are nonentities [F.285.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the nose is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the tongue is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the body is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the mental faculty is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because sights are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because sounds are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because odors are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because tastes are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because tangibles are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because mental phenomena are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because visual consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because auditory consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because olfactory consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because gustatory consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because tactile consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because mental consciousness is a nonentity [F.286.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because visually compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because aurally compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because nasally compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because lingually compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the earth element is a nonentity [F.286.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the water element is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the fire element is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the wind element is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the space element is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the consciousness element is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because ignorance is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because formative predispositions are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because consciousness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because name and form are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the six sense fields are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because sensory contact is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because sensation is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because craving is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because grasping is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the rebirth process is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because birth is a nonentity [F.287.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because aging and death are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the perfection of generosity is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the perfection of ethical discipline is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the perfection of tolerance is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the perfection of perseverance is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the perfection of meditative concentration is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the emptiness of internal phenomena is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of external phenomena is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of emptiness is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of great extent is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is a nonentity [F.287.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of the unlimited is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of inherent nature is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of all phenomena is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of nonentities is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness of essential nature is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the applications of mindfulness are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the correct exertions are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the supports for miraculous ability are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the faculties are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a [F.288.a] nonentity, because the powers are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the branches of enlightenment are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the noble eightfold path is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; because the truths of the noble ones are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the meditative concentrations are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the immeasurable attitudes are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the formless absorptions are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the liberations are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the extrasensory powers are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the meditative stabilities are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the dhāraṇī gateways are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the powers of the tathāgatas are nonentities the perfection of wisdom [F.288.b] is viewed as a nonentity, because the fearlessnesses are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the kinds of exact knowledge are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because great compassion is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the fruit of once-returner is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the fruit of non-returner is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because arhatship is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because individual enlightenment is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is a nonentity the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are nonentities the perfection of wisdom is viewed as a nonentity.

25.264 “Because beings are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because physical forms are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because feelings are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because perceptions are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is [F.289.a] viewed as emptiness, because formative predispositions are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the eyes are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the ears are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the nose is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the tongue is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the body is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because the mental faculty is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because sights are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because sounds are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because odors are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because tastes are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because tangibles are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because mental phenomena are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because visual consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because auditory consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because olfactory consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because gustatory consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because tactile consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, [F.289.b] and because mental consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because visually compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because aurally compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because nasally compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because lingually compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the earth element is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the water element is emptiness

the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the fire element is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, [F.290.a] because the wind element is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the space element is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because the consciousness element is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because ignorance is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because formative predispositions are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because consciousness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because name and form are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the six sense fields are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because sensory contact is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because sensation is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because craving is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because grasping is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the rebirth process is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because birth is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because aging and death are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the perfection of generosity is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the perfection of ethical discipline is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the perfection of tolerance is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the perfection of perseverance is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, [F.290.b] and because the perfection of meditative concentration is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the emptiness of internal phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of external phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of emptiness is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of great extent is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of the unlimited is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of that which has

neither beginning nor end is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of inherent nature is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of all phenomena is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness of nonentities is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, [F.291.a] because the emptiness of essential nature is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the applications of mindfulness are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the correct exertions are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the supports for miraculous ability are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the faculties are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the powers are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the branches of enlightenment are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because the noble eightfold path is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; because the truths of the noble ones are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the meditative concentrations are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the immeasurable attitudes are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the formless absorptions are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the liberations are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation [F.291.b] are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the extrasensory powers are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the meditative stabilities are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the dhāraṇī gateways are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the powers of the tathāgatas are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the fearlessnesses are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the kinds of exact knowledge are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because great compassion is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the fruit of once-returner is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the fruit of non-returner is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because arhatship is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because individual enlightenment is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are emptiness the perfection of wisdom is viewed as emptiness.

25.265 “Because beings are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because physical forms are void [F.292.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because feelings are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because perceptions are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because formative predispositions are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the eyes are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the ears are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the nose is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the tongue is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the body is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the mental faculty is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because sights are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because sounds are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because odors are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because tastes are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because tangibles are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because mental phenomena are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because visual consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because auditory consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because olfactory consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because gustatory consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because tactile consciousness is void [F.292.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because mental consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because visually compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because aurally compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because nasally compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because lingually compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the earth element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the water element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the fire element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the wind element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the space element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the consciousness element is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because ignorance is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because formative predispositions are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because consciousness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because name and form are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the six sense fields are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because sensory contact is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because sensation is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because craving is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because grasping is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the rebirth process is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because birth is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because aging and death are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the perfection of generosity is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the perfection of ethical discipline is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the perfection of tolerance is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the perfection of perseverance is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the perfection of meditative concentration is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void;

because the emptiness of internal phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, [F.293.b] because the emptiness of external phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of emptiness is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of great extent is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of the unlimited is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of inherent nature is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of all phenomena is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of nonentities is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness of essential nature is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the applications of mindfulness [F.294.a] are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the correct exertions are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the supports for miraculous ability are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the faculties are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the powers are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the branches of enlightenment are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the noble eightfold path is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the truths of the noble ones are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the meditative concentrations are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the immeasurable attitudes are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the formless absorptions are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the liberations are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the emptiness, signlessness, and

wishlessness gateways to liberation are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the extrasensory powers are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the meditative stabilities are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the dhāraṇī gateways are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, [F.294.b] because the powers of the tathāgatas are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the fearlessnesses are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the kinds of exact knowledge are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because great compassion is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void; because the fruit of having entered the stream is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the fruit of once-returner is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the fruit of non-returner is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because arhatship is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because individual enlightenment is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are void the perfection of wisdom is viewed as void.

25.266 “Because beings are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because physical forms are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because feelings are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because perceptions are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because formative predispositions are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because the eyes are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.295.a] nonexistent, because the ears are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the nose is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the tongue is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the body is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the mental faculty is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because sights are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because sounds are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because odors are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because tastes are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because tangibles are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because

mental phenomena are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because visual consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because auditory consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because olfactory consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because gustatory consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because tactile consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because mental consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because visually compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because aurally compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, [F.295.b] because nasally compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because lingually compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because the earth element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the water element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the fire element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the wind element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the space element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the consciousness element is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because ignorance is nonexistent [F.296.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because formative predispositions are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because consciousness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because name and form are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the six sense fields are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because sensory contact is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because sensation is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because craving is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because grasping is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the rebirth process is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because birth is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because aging and death are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because the perfection of generosity is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the perfection of ethical discipline is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the perfection of tolerance is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the perfection of perseverance is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the perfection of meditative concentration is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because the emptiness of internal phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, [F.296.b] because the emptiness of external phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of emptiness is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of great extent is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of the unlimited is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of inherent nature is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of all phenomena is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of nonentities is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness of essential nature is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.297.a] nonexistent; because the applications of mindfulness are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the correct exertions are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the supports for miraculous ability are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the faculties are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the powers are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the branches of enlightenment are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the noble eightfold path is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; because the truths of the noble ones are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the meditative concentrations are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the immeasurable attitudes are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the formless absorptions are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the liberations are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the extrasensory powers are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the meditative stabilities are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the dhāraṇī gateways [F.297.b] are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the powers of the tathāgatas are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the fearlessnesses are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the kinds of exact knowledge are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because great compassion is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the fruit of once-returner is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the fruit of non-returner is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because arhatship is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because individual enlightenment is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are nonexistent the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonexistent.

25.267 “Because beings are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because physical forms are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because feelings are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because perceptions are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because formative predispositions are inconceivable [F.298.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because the eyes are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the ears are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the nose is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the tongue is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the body is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because the mental faculty is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because sights are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because sounds are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because odors are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because tastes are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because tangibles are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because mental phenomena are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because visual consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because auditory consciousness is inconceivable [F.298.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because olfactory consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because gustatory consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because tactile consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because mental consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because visually compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because aurally compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because nasally compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because lingually compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, [F.299.a] because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because the earth element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the water element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the fire element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the wind element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the space element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because the consciousness element is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because ignorance is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because formative predispositions are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because consciousness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because name and form are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the six sense fields are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.299.b] inconceivable, because sensory contact is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because sensation is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because craving is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because grasping is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the rebirth process is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because birth is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because aging and death are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because the perfection of generosity is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the perfection of ethical discipline is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the perfection of tolerance is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the perfection of perseverance is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because the perfection of meditative concentration is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; [B22] because the emptiness of internal phenomena is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of external phenomena is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is inconceivable [F.300.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of emptiness is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of great extent is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of the unlimited is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of inherent nature is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of all phenomena is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of nonentities is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness of essential nature is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed [F.300.b] as inconceivable, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because the applications of mindfulness are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the correct exertions are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the supports for miraculous ability are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the faculties are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the powers are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the branches of enlightenment are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because the noble eightfold path is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; because the truths of the noble ones are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the meditative concentrations are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the immeasurable attitudes are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the formless absorptions are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the liberations are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the serial steps of meditative absorption [F.301.a] are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the extrasensory powers are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the meditative stabilities are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the dhāraṇī gateways are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the powers of the tathāgatas are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the fearlessnesses are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the kinds of exact knowledge are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because great compassion is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the fruit of once-returner is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the fruit of non-returner is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.301.b] inconceivable, because arhatship is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because individual enlightenment is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are inconceivable the perfection of wisdom is viewed as inconceivable.

25.268 “Because beings are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because physical forms are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because feelings are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because perceptions are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because formative predispositions are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the eyes are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the ears are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the nose is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the tongue is nonperishing [F.302.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the body is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the mental faculty is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because sights are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because sounds are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because odors are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because tastes are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because tangibles are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because mental phenomena are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because visual consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because auditory consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because olfactory consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because gustatory consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because tactile consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is [F.302.b] viewed as nonperishing, and because mental consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because visually compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because aurally compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because nasally compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because lingually compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because corporeally compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because mentally compounded sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.303.a] nonperishing, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the earth element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the water element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the fire element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the wind element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the space element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the consciousness element is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because ignorance is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because formative predispositions are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because consciousness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because name and form are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the six sense fields are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because sensory contact is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because sensation is nonperishing [F.303.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because craving is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because grasping is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the rebirth process is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because birth is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because aging and death are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the perfection of generosity is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the perfection of ethical discipline is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the perfection of tolerance is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the perfection of perseverance is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the perfection of meditative concentration is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the emptiness of internal phenomena is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of external phenomena is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena [F.304.a] is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of emptiness is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of great extent is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of ultimate reality is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of the unlimited is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of nonexclusion is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of inherent nature is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of all phenomena is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, [F.304.b] because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of nonentities is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness of essential nature is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the applications of mindfulness are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the correct exertions are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the supports for miraculous ability are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the faculties are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the powers are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the branches of enlightenment are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the noble eightfold path is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; because the truths of the noble ones are nonperishing [F.305.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the meditative concentrations are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the immeasurable attitudes are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the formless absorptions are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the liberations are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the serial steps of meditative absorption are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the extrasensory powers are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the meditative stabilities are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the dhāraṇī gateways are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the powers of the tathāgatas are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the fearlessnesses are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, [F.305.b] because the kinds of exact knowledge are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because great compassion is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing; and because the fruit of having entered the stream is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the fruit of once-returner is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the fruit of non-returner is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because arhatship is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because individual enlightenment is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path is nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas are nonperishing the perfection of wisdom is viewed as nonperishing.

25.269 “Because beings do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because physical forms do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, [F.306.a] because feelings do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because perceptions do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because formative predispositions do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because the eyes do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the ears do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the nose does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the tongue does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the body does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the mental faculty does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because sights do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because sounds [F.306.b] do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because odors do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because tastes do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because tangibles do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because mental phenomena do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because visual consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because auditory consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because olfactory consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because gustatory consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because tactile consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because mental consciousness does not fully awaken [F.307.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because visually compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because aurally compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because nasally compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because lingually compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because corporeally compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because mentally compounded sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not [F.307.b] fully awakening, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because the earth element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the water element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the fire element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the wind element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the space element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the consciousness element does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because ignorance does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as [F.308.a] not fully awakening, because formative predispositions do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because consciousness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because name and form do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the six sense fields do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because sensory contact does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because sensation does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because craving does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because grasping does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the rebirth process does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because birth does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because aging and death do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; [F.308.b] because the perfection of generosity does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the perfection of ethical discipline does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the perfection of tolerance does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the perfection of perseverance does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the perfection of meditative concentration does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because the emptiness of internal phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of external phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of emptiness does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of great extent does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, [F.309.a] because the emptiness of ultimate reality does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of the unlimited does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of nonexclusion does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of inherent nature does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of all phenomena does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, [F.309.b] because the emptiness of nonentities does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness of essential nature does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because the applications of mindfulness do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the correct exertions do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the supports for miraculous ability do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the faculties do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the powers do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the branches of enlightenment do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the noble eightfold path does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; because the truths of the noble ones do not fully awaken [F.310.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the meditative concentrations do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the immeasurable attitudes do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the formless absorptions do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the liberations do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the serial steps of meditative absorption do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the extrasensory powers do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the meditative stabilities do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the dhāraṇī gateways do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the powers of the tathāgatas do not fully awaken [F.310.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the fearlessnesses do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the kinds of exact knowledge do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because great compassion does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening; and because the fruit of having entered the stream does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the fruit of once-returner does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the fruit of non-returner does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because arhatship does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because individual enlightenment does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path does not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom [F.311.a] is viewed as not fully awakening, and because enlightenment, the buddhas, and the attributes of the buddhas do not fully awaken the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully awakening.

25.270 “Because beings do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because physical forms do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because feelings do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because perceptions do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because formative predispositions do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the eyes do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the ears do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the nose does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the tongue does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving [F.311.b] the powers, because the body does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the mental faculty does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because sights do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because sounds do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because odors do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because tastes do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because tangibles do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because mental phenomena do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because visual consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because auditory consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because olfactory consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because gustatory consciousness does not fully achieve the powers [F.312.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because tactile consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because mental consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because visually compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because aurally compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because nasally compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because lingually compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because corporeally compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because mentally compounded sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers [F.312.b] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the earth element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the water element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the fire element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the wind element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the space element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the consciousness element does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because ignorance does not fully achieve the powers [F.313.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because formative predispositions do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because consciousness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because name and form do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the six sense fields do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because sensory contact does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because sensation does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because craving does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because grasping does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the rebirth process does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because birth does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because aging and death do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the perfection of generosity [F.313.b] does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the perfection of ethical discipline does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the perfection of tolerance does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the perfection of perseverance does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the perfection of meditative concentration does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the emptiness of internal phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of external phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of external and internal phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of emptiness does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of great extent does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of ultimate reality does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, [F.314.a] because the emptiness of conditioned phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of the unlimited does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of nonexclusion does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of inherent nature does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of all phenomena does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of nonentities does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness of essential nature does not fully achieve [F.314.b] the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the applications of mindfulness do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the correct exertions do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the supports for miraculous ability do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the faculties do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the powers do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the branches of enlightenment do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the noble eightfold path does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; because the truths of the noble ones do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the meditative concentrations do not fully achieve the powers [F.315.a] the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the immeasurable attitudes do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the formless absorptions do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the liberations do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the serial steps of meditative absorption do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the extrasensory powers do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the meditative stabilities do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the dhāraṇī gateways do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the powers of the tathāgatas do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the fearlessnesses do not fully achieve [F.315.b] the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the kinds of exact knowledge do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because great compassion does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, and because the distinct qualities of the buddhas do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers; and because the fruit of having entered the stream does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the fruit of once-returner does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the fruit of non-returner does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because arhatship does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because individual enlightenment does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, because the knowledge of the aspects of the path does not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers, [F.316.a] and because the powers of unsurpassed, complete enlightenment do not fully achieve the powers the perfection of wisdom is viewed as not fully achieving the powers.

25.271 “Also in this way, Blessed Lord, this perfection of wisdom is the great perfection of bodhisattva great beings.”

25.272 This completes the twenty-fifth chapter from “The Perfection of Wisdom in One Hundred Thousand Lines.” [B23]

CHAPTER 26

- 26.1 Then the venerable Śāradvatīputra asked the Blessed One, “Blessed Lord, where do those bodhisattva great beings who have a resolute belief in this profound perfection of wisdom pass away before coming here? For how long have these sons or daughters of good families set out for unsurpassed, perfect, complete enlightenment? How many tathāgatas, arhats, perfectly complete buddhas have they served? For how long have those with a resolute belief in this profound perfection of wisdom as reality and as method⁸⁰⁵ practiced the perfection of generosity? For how long have they practiced the perfection of ethical discipline? For how long have they practiced the perfection of tolerance? For how long have they practiced the perfection of perseverance? For how long have they practiced the perfection of meditative concentration? And for how long have they practiced the perfection of wisdom?”
- 26.2 “Śāradvatīputra,” replied the Blessed One, “those bodhisattva great beings [F.316.b] have come here and been reborn here after they have served immeasurable, countless tathāgatas, arhats, perfectly complete buddhas in the world systems of the ten directions. Śāradvatīputra, those bodhisattva great beings have practiced the perfection of generosity, practiced the perfection of ethical discipline, practiced the perfection of tolerance, practiced the perfection of perseverance, practiced the perfection of meditative concentration, and practiced the perfection of wisdom for a hundred thousand ten million billion countless, immeasurable, and boundless eons. They set out for unsurpassed, perfect, complete enlightenment a hundred thousand ten million billion countless, immeasurable, and boundless eons ago, and from the time when they first set their mind on enlightenment they have practiced the perfection of generosity and come here, have practiced the perfection of ethical discipline and come here, have practiced the perfection of tolerance and come here, have practiced the perfection of perseverance and come here, have practiced the perfection of meditative concentration and come here, and have practiced the perfection of wisdom and come here. From that time onward they served countless, immeasurable, boundless, inconceivable, and incomparable⁸⁰⁶ tathāgatas, arhats, perfectly complete buddhas and have come here and been reborn here. Śāradvatīputra, when those bodhisattva great beings see or hear this perfection of wisdom, they will set their mind on, 'I have seen the Teacher.' They will set their mind on, 'I have heard the Teacher.' [F.317.a] Śāradvatīputra, those bodhisattva great beings will follow this perfection of wisdom as reality and as method by way of nonduality and not apprehending anything."

26.3 Thereupon, the venerable Subhūti asked the Blessed One, "Blessed Lord, is the perfection of wisdom heard or seen?"

26.4 "It is not, Subhūti," replied the Blessed One. "Subhūti, there are no hearers and there are no seers of the perfection of wisdom. The actual perfection of wisdom⁸⁰⁷ is not heard and not seen. Because phenomena are insentient,⁸⁰⁸ they do not hear and do not see the perfection of wisdom. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the perfection of meditative concentration. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the perfection of perseverance. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the perfection of tolerance. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the perfection of ethical discipline. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the perfection of generosity. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of internal phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of external phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of external and internal phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of emptiness. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see [F.317.b] the emptiness of great extent. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of ultimate reality. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of conditioned phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of the unlimited. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of nonexclusion. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of inherent nature. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of all phenomena. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of nonentities. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of essential nature. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the applications of mindfulness. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the correct exertions. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the supports for miraculous ability. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the faculties. Because phenomena are insentient, [F.318.a] they do not hear and do not see the powers. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the branches of enlightenment. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the noble eightfold path. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the truths of the noble ones. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the meditative concentrations. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the immeasurable attitudes. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the formless absorptions. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the liberations. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the serial steps of meditative absorption. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the extrasensory powers. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the meditative stabilities. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the dhāraṇī gateways. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the powers of the tathāgatas. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the fearlessnesses. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the kinds of exact knowledge. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see great compassion. Because phenomena are insentient, [F.318.b] they do not hear and do not see the distinct qualities of the buddhas. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the fruit of having entered the stream. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the fruit of once-returner. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the fruit of non-returner. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see arhatship. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see individual enlightenment. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see the knowledge of the aspects of the path. Because phenomena are insentient, they do not hear and do not see enlightenment, the buddhas, or the attributes of the buddhas.”

26.5 Subhūti asked, “Blessed Lord, for how long have bodhisattva great beings who make an effort at⁸⁰⁹ this profound perfection of wisdom been practicing?”

26.6 “Subhūti,” said the Blessed One, “here there is a distinction that must be explained.⁸¹⁰ Subhūti, there are some bodhisattva great beings who, commencing from the time when they first set their mind on enlightenment, make an effort at this profound perfection of wisdom by way of not apprehending anything, make an effort at the perfection of meditative concentration, make an effort at the perfection of perseverance, make an effort at the perfection of tolerance, make an effort at the perfection of ethical discipline, and make an effort at make an effort at the perfection of generosity, and, because they see neither increase nor decrease, do not abandon any phenomenon at all, are never be separated from the six perfections, and are never be separated from [F.319.a] the lord buddhas. They will also accomplish those roots of virtue—the roots of virtue on account of which they want to serve, respect, honor, and worship the lord buddhas—simply by setting the mind. They proceed from buddhafiield to buddhafiield, are never reborn in the womb of a mother, are never separated from the extrasensory powers, do not entertain any afflicted mental state, and do not abide in the mind of śrāvakas or pratyekabuddhas. They bring beings to maturity, refine a buddhafiield, and proceed from buddhafiield to buddhafiield. Subhūti, in those sorts of ways those sorts of bodhisattva great beings make an effort at this profound perfection of wisdom.

26.7 “Subhūti, there are also other sons or daughters of good families in the vehicle of the bodhisattvas who have seen many hundreds of buddhas, many thousands of buddhas, many hundred ten million billions of buddhas, and who, in their presence, by way of apprehending things, have undertaken acts of generosity, maintained ethical discipline, cultivated tolerance, undertaken perseverance, developed meditative concentration, and cultivated wisdom. When this profound perfection of wisdom is being taught, they will depart elsewhere from the assembly. When this profound perfection of wisdom is being taught, these sons or daughters of good families in the vehicle of the bodhisattvas, without honoring them, depart elsewhere from the presence of those lord buddhas. If you ask why, it is because those sons of good families [F.319.b] or daughters of good families in the vehicle of the bodhisattvas departed elsewhere from the assembly in the past when this profound perfection of wisdom was being taught, so also, at this present time, they depart elsewhere from the assembly when this profound perfection of wisdom is being taught. They will not behave appropriately, physically or mentally,. They amass karma that will make them become intellectually stupid, and because they have made and amassed karma that will make them intellectually stupid, when this profound perfection of wisdom is taught, they will abandon it. By abandoning this perfection of wisdom, they will have abandoned the all-aspect omniscience of the lord buddhas of the past, the future, and the present. By having accrued and accumulated the karma that comes from abandoning all-aspect omniscience, and having accrued and accumulated the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma, they will roast⁸¹¹ in the hells for many years, for many hundred years, for many thousand years, for many hundred thousand years; for many ten million years, for many hundred ten million years, for many thousand ten million years, and for many hundred ten million billion years.

26.8 “They will proceed from great hells to great hells, and, while proceeding from a great hell to a great hell, the destruction by fire, or the destruction by water, or the destruction by wind happens. But even while they are being destroyed in that manner by fire, or being destroyed by water, or being destroyed by wind, [F.320.a] they are cast into the great hells in other world systems. They will be reborn in them and burned in them.

26.9 “Having been cast there and reborn there, they will again proceed from great hells to great hells, and, while proceeding from a great hell to a great hell, the destruction by fire, or the destruction by water, or the destruction by wind again happens. But even while they are being destroyed in that manner by fire, or being destroyed by water, or being destroyed by wind, they are cast into the great hells in other world systems. They will be reborn in them and burned in them.

26.10 “Having been cast there and reborn there, they will again proceed from great hells to great hells, and, while proceeding from a great hell to a great hell, the destruction by fire, or the destruction by water, or the destruction by wind again happens. But even while they are being destroyed in that manner by fire, or being destroyed by water, or being destroyed by wind, they are cast into the great hells in the eastern direction. They will be reborn in them and burned in them.

26.11 “Having been cast there and reborn there, they will again proceed from great hells to great hells, and, while proceeding from a great hell to a great hell, the destruction by fire, or the destruction by water, or the destruction by wind again happens. But even while they are being destroyed in that manner by fire, or being destroyed [F.320.b] by water, or being destroyed by wind, they are cast into the great hells in the southern direction, they are cast into the great hells in the western direction, they are cast into the great hells in the northern direction, they are cast into the great hells in the northeastern intermediate direction, they are cast into the great hells in the southeastern intermediate direction, they are cast into the great hells in the southwestern intermediate direction, they are cast into the great hells in the northwestern intermediate direction, they are cast into the great hells in the direction below, and they are cast into the great hells in the direction above.

26.12 “In those too they will again proceed from great hells to great hells, and, while proceeding from a great hell to a great hell, the destruction by fire, or the destruction by water, or the destruction by wind again happens. But even while they are being destroyed in that manner by fire, or being destroyed by water, or being destroyed by wind, they pass away there, and, because the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma has not been exhausted, they are again reborn here. They again proceed from great hells to great hells. Having taken rebirth there, they will again, in those great hells, undergo the experience of the sufferings of the great hells. In those they will experience those sufferings of the hells until they are destroyed by fire, or are destroyed by water, or are destroyed by wind.

26.13 “But even after they have been destroyed by fire, or have been destroyed by water, [F.321.a] or have been destroyed by wind, they pass away there and are reborn equal in fortune to creatures of the animal world in the world systems of the eastern direction, and similarly, are reborn equal in fortune to creatures of the animal world in the southern direction, in the northern direction, in the northeastern intermediate direction, in the southeastern intermediate direction, in the southwestern intermediate direction, in the northwestern intermediate direction, in the direction below, and in the direction above.

26.14 “Similarly, they will also be reborn in the worlds of Yama in up to the world systems of all the ten directions. Having been reborn in them, if, once the karma for experiencing many sufferings has been exhausted, somehow or other⁸¹² they acquire a human birth, still, through the maturation of the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma that they made, accumulated, established, have taken on, and completed, wherever they are reborn, they will be born into families of the blind, they will be born into families of refuse scavengers, they will be born into families of outcastes, and they will be born into families of reed makers. Having taken rebirth in them, they too will become blind, will become lame, will be without a nose, will be without a tongue, will be without arms, will be without legs, will have leprosy, will have white-blotched skin, or will become a hunchback. They will always be reborn where the word Buddha is nonexistent, where the word Dharma is nonexistent, and where the word Śaṅgha is nonexistent.”

26.15 Then the venerable Śāradvatīputra said to the Blessed One, “Blessed Lord, even the five inexpressible crimes are nothing more than a mere pale reflection of this making and amassing of karma [F.321.b] that leads to the destruction of the Dharma.”

26.16 “Śāradvatīputra,” replied the Blessed One, “do not even think to say they are but a pale reflection of this karma that destroys the Dharma—this karma they make and amass when this profound perfection of wisdom is being taught and explained and they think they should reject⁸¹³ it, saying, ‘You and I should not train in this. This is not the Dharma. This is not the Vinaya. This is not a teaching of the Teacher. This has not been spoken by the tathāgatas, arhats, perfectly complete buddhas!’; when they themselves reject it, and cause other beings to have no resolute belief in it; when they themselves, having ruined⁸¹⁴ their own minds, ruin the minds of others; when they themselves, having poisoned their own minds, delight in poisoning the minds of others; when they themselves, having squandered their own opportunity, delight in causing others to squander their opportunity; and when they themselves, wishing to reject the profound perfection of wisdom owing to their lack of understanding and lack of awareness, cause others to take that up.

26.17 “Śāradvatīputra, I do not permit such individuals even to hear it, let alone encounter it, let alone associate with it! I do not mention it. If you ask why, Śāradvatīputra, you should know that such individuals defame the Dharma. Śāradvatīputra, you should know that such individuals have bad intentions and they side with evil. Śāradvatīputra, those who think they should hear the words of such individuals, or think they should trust in them, will also be destitute on account of their unseemly fears.

26.18 “Śāradvatīputra, since I do not let such individuals even hear it, why would I even mention their encountering it? Why would I mention their associating with it? I have not mentioned that. If you ask why, Śāradvatīputra, you should know that such individuals as these defame the Dharma. Śāradvatīputra, you should know that such individuals as these are the stupid type, are the type on the dark side. Śāradvatīputra, those who think they should listen to the words of such individuals, or think they should trust in them are misled⁸¹⁵ and will be ruined by calamities.⁸¹⁶ Śāradvatīputra, you should know that those who defame the perfection of wisdom [F.322.a] defame the Dharma. You should know that they are in the hells, in the animal realms, or in the world of Yama.”

- 26.19 Śāriputra said, “Blessed Lord, you have not yet spoken of the measure of the body⁸¹⁷ of those who are reborn as individuals who have defamed the Dharma.”
- 26.20 “Śāradvatīputra,” replied the Blessed One, “do not speak about the measure of the body of those individuals who have defamed the Dharma and been reborn there.⁸¹⁸ If you ask why, it is because if one hears about the measure of the body of those individuals who have defamed the Dharma would one immediately vomit blood, die, experience life-threatening sufferings, be pained with sorrow, or become dried up and shriveled like a plant that has been scythed. If one were to hear about the measure of the body of such individuals and persons, there would simply be such misfortune as that.” Having said about the measure of their body, ‘That is that,’ the Blessed One refused to take the opportunity put by the venerable Śāradvatīputra.
- 26.21 Śāriputra said, “Blessed Lord, please, I request you to explain, because, by saying, ‘This is the sort of measure of the body that those who have made and amassed the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma will obtain,’ it will be apparent for beings of the future.”
- 26.22 “Śāradvatīputra,” replied the Blessed One, “it will be made apparent to the beings of the future just by having done this, saying that those individuals who have made, accumulated, carried out fully,⁸¹⁹ completed, taken on, and brought to fulfillment the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma will experience sufferings in the hells for so long,⁸²⁰ will experience sufferings in the animal for so long, and will experience sufferings in the world of Yama [F.322.b] for so long.”
- 26.23 “So be it, Blessed Lord. So be it, Well-Gone One. Blessed Lord, because of just that, bright individuals belonging to good families will abandon such errors. With the thought, ‘Let it not come about that we will experience such sufferings,’ they will not abandon the Dharma, even for the sake of their own lives.”
- 26.24 Then the venerable Subhūti said to the Blessed One, “Blessed Lord, when sons or daughters of good families hear this description of the errors of those individuals who abandon the Dharma, they should be absolutely restrained in physical, verbal, and mental actions, thinking, ‘Otherwise we shall experience such sufferings in the terrible forms of life,⁸²¹ we too shall not behold the Tathāgata, not hear the Dharma, and not wait on and venerate the Saṅgha, we shall be born in buddhafiels where buddhas have not appeared, be impoverished human beings, and be extremely avaricious,’ and so on.”

- 26.25 Again, the venerable Subhūti spoke to the Blessed One: “Blessed Lord, the karma of speech they have made and amassed becomes karma that has been made and amassed that leads to the destruction of the Dharma.”
- 26.26 “Subhūti,” said the Blessed One, “those who have made and amassed the karma of speech [that defames the Dharma] have made and amassed the karma that leads to the destruction of the Dharma. Subhūti, even those deluded persons who intend to defame this perfection of wisdom and intend to reject it will go forth to homelessness in this very Dharma and Vinaya. Subhūti, by defaming and rejecting the perfection of wisdom, they defame and reject the enlightenment of the lord buddhas. By defaming and rejecting the enlightenment of the buddhas, [F.323.a] they defame and reject the all-aspect omniscience of the tathāgatas, arhats, perfectly complete buddhas of the past, the future, and the present. By defaming and rejecting all-aspect omniscience, they defame and reject the Dharma. By defaming and rejecting the Dharma, they reject the saṅgha. By rejecting the saṅgha, they reject mundane right view.⁸²² By rejecting mundane right view, they reject the perfection of generosity, reject the perfection of ethical discipline, reject the perfection of tolerance, reject the perfection of perseverance, reject the perfection of meditative concentration, and reject the perfection of wisdom. They reject the emptiness of internal phenomena, reject the emptiness of external phenomena, reject the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, reject the emptiness of emptiness, reject the emptiness of great extent, reject the emptiness of ultimate reality, reject the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, reject the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, reject the emptiness of the unlimited, reject the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, reject the emptiness of nonexclusion, reject the emptiness of inherent nature, reject the emptiness of all phenomena, reject the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, reject the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, reject the emptiness of nonentities, [F.323.b] reject the emptiness of essential nature, and reject the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities. They reject the four applications of mindfulness, reject the four correct exertions, reject the four supports for miraculous ability, reject the five faculties, reject the five powers, reject the seven branches of enlightenment, and reject the noble eightfold path. They reject the four truths of the noble ones, reject the four meditative concentrations, reject the four immeasurable attitudes, reject the four formless absorptions, reject the eight liberations, reject the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, reject the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, reject the five extrasensory powers, reject all the meditative stabilities, reject all the dhāraṇī gateways, reject the ten powers of the tathāgatas, reject the four fearlessnesses, reject the four kinds of exact knowledge, reject great loving kindness, reject great compassion, reject the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, reject knowledge of all the dharmas, reject the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and reject all-aspect omniscience. By rejecting all-aspect omniscience, they seize [F.324.a] an immeasurable, incalculable, boundless mass of demerit. Seizing an immeasurable, incalculable, boundless mass of demerit, they experience immeasurable, incalculable, boundless sufferings and unhappiness among beings in hell, animals, and pretas.”

26.27 The venerable Subhūti then asked the Blessed One, “Blessed Lord, in how many ways⁸²³ do those deluded persons who reject this profound perfection of wisdom reject it?”

“Subhūti,” replied the Blessed One, “those deluded persons reject the perfection of wisdom in four ways.”

26.28 “What are the four ways?” asked Subhūti.

The Blessed One replied, “Those deluded persons who reject this profound perfection of wisdom are under the influence of Māra. As a result of that, the first cause, Subhūti, they reject this profound perfection of wisdom. They have no conviction, faith, or resolute belief with respect to profound attributes. As a result of that, the second cause, they reject this profound perfection of wisdom. Subhūti, those deluded persons fall into the clutches of evil associates, lack perseverance, and are fixated on the five aggregates. As a result of that, the third cause, they reject this profound perfection of wisdom. And, Subhūti, those deluded persons act out of hatred,⁸²⁴ praising themselves and deprecating others. As a result of that, the fourth cause, they reject this profound perfection of wisdom. [F.324.b] Subhūti, in these four ways deluded persons reject this profound perfection of wisdom.”

26.29 “Blessed Lord,” said Subhūti, “it is difficult for those who lack perseverance, who are without the roots of virtue, and who are in the clutches of evil associates to have resolute belief in this profound perfection of wisdom.”

26.30 “Subhūti, it is so,” replied the Blessed One. “It is difficult for those who lack perseverance, who are without the roots of virtue, and who have fallen into in the clutches of evil associates to have resolute belief in this profound perfection of wisdom.”

26.31 Subhūti then asked, “Blessed Lord, just how profound is this perfection of wisdom in which it is difficult to have such resolute belief?”

26.32 “Subhūti,” replied the Blessed One, “physical forms are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in physical forms is physical forms. Subhūti, feelings are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings is feelings. Subhūti, perceptions are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in perceptions is perceptions. Subhūti, formative predispositions are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in formative predispositions is formative predispositions. Subhūti, consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in consciousness is consciousness.

26.33 “Subhūti, the eyes are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the eyes is the eyes. Subhūti, the ears are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the ears is the ears. Subhūti, the nose is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the nose is the nose. Subhūti, the tongue is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, [F.325.a] Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the tongue is the tongue. Subhūti, the body is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the body is the body. Subhūti, the mental faculty is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the mental faculty is the mental faculty.

26.34 “Subhūti, sights are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in sights is sights. Subhūti, sounds are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in sounds is sounds. Subhūti, odors are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in odors is odors. Subhūti, tastes are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in tastes is tastes. Subhūti, tangibles are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in tangibles is tangibles. Subhūti, mental phenomena are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in mental phenomena is mental phenomena.

26.35 “Subhūti, visual consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in visual consciousness is visual consciousness. Subhūti, auditory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in auditory consciousness is auditory consciousness. Subhūti, olfactory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in olfactory consciousness is olfactory consciousness. Subhūti, gustatory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in gustatory consciousness is gustatory consciousness. Subhūti, tactile consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, [F.325.b] it is because the absence of an essential nature in tactile consciousness is tactile consciousness. Subhūti, mental consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in mental consciousness is mental consciousness.

26.36 “Subhūti, visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in visually compounded sensory contact is visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in aurally compounded sensory contact is aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in nasally compounded sensory contact is nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in lingually compounded sensory contact is lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in corporeally compounded sensory contact is corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in mentally compounded sensory contact is mentally compounded sensory contact.

26.37 “Subhūti, feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact [F.326.a] are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact.

26.38 “Subhūti, the earth element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the earth element is the earth element. Subhūti, the water element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the water element is the water element. Subhūti, the fire element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the fire element is the fire element. Subhūti, the wind element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the wind element is the wind element. Subhūti, the space element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the space element is the space element. Subhūti, the consciousness element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, [F.326.b] it is because the absence of an essential nature in the consciousness element is the consciousness element.

26.39 “Subhūti, ignorance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in ignorance is ignorance. Subhūti, formative predispositions are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in formative predispositions is formative predispositions. Subhūti, consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in consciousness is consciousness. Subhūti, name and form are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in name and form is name and form. Subhūti, the six sense fields are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the six sense fields is the six sense fields. Subhūti, sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in sensory contact is sensory contact. Subhūti, sensation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in sensation is sensation. Subhūti, craving is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in craving is craving. Subhūti, grasping is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in grasping is grasping. Subhūti, the rebirth process is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the rebirth process is the rebirth process. Subhūti, birth is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in birth is birth. Subhūti, aging and death are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in aging and death is aging and death.

26.40 “Subhūti, the perfection of generosity is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of generosity is the perfection of generosity. [F.327.a] Subhūti, the perfection of ethical discipline is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of ethical discipline is the perfection of ethical discipline. Subhūti, the perfection of tolerance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of tolerance is the perfection of tolerance. Subhūti, the perfection of perseverance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of perseverance is the perfection of perseverance. Subhūti, the perfection of meditative concentration is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of meditative concentration is the perfection of meditative concentration. Subhūti, the perfection of wisdom is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the perfection of wisdom is the perfection of wisdom.

26.41 “Subhūti, the emptiness of internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of internal phenomena is the emptiness of internal phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of external phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of external phenomena is the emptiness of external phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the emptiness of external and internal phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of emptiness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of emptiness is the emptiness of emptiness. Subhūti, the emptiness of great extent is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of great extent is the emptiness of great extent. Subhūti, the emptiness of ultimate reality is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, [F.327.b] Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of ultimate reality is the emptiness of ultimate reality. Subhūti, the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the emptiness of conditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of the unlimited is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of the unlimited is the emptiness of the unlimited. Subhūti, the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end. Subhūti, the emptiness of nonexclusion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of nonexclusion is the emptiness of nonexclusion. Subhūti, the emptiness of inherent nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of inherent nature is the emptiness of inherent nature. Subhūti, the emptiness of all phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of all phenomena is the emptiness of all phenomena. Subhūti, the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics. Subhūti, the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended. Subhūti, the emptiness of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature [F.328.a] in the emptiness of nonentities is the emptiness of nonentities. Subhūti, the emptiness of essential nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of essential nature is the emptiness of essential nature. Subhūti, the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities.

26.42 “Subhūti, the applications of mindfulness are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the applications of mindfulness is the applications of mindfulness. Subhūti, the correct exertions are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the correct exertions is the correct exertions. Subhūti, the supports for miraculous ability are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the supports for miraculous ability is the supports for miraculous ability. Subhūti, the faculties are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the faculties is the faculties. Subhūti, the powers are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the powers is the powers. Subhūti, the branches of enlightenment are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the branches of enlightenment is the branches of enlightenment. Subhūti, the noble eightfold path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the noble eightfold path is the noble eightfold path.

26.43 “Subhūti, the truths of the noble ones are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, [F.328.b] Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the truths of the noble ones is the truths of the noble ones. Subhūti, the meditative concentrations are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the meditative concentrations is the meditative concentrations. Subhūti, the immeasurable attitudes are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the immeasurable attitudes is the immeasurable attitudes. Subhūti, the formless absorptions are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the formless absorptions is the formless absorptions. Subhūti, the liberations are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the liberations is the liberations. Subhūti, the serial steps of meditative absorption are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the serial steps of meditative absorption is the serial steps of meditative absorption. Subhūti, the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation. Subhūti, the extrasensory powers are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the extrasensory powers is the extrasensory powers. Subhūti, the meditative stabilities are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the meditative stabilities is the meditative stabilities. Subhūti, the dhāraṇī gateways are neither fettered [F.329.a] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the dhāraṇī gateways is the dhāraṇī gateways.

26.44 “Subhūti, the powers of the tathāgatas are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the powers of the tathāgatas is the powers of the tathāgatas. Subhūti, the fearlessnesses are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the fearlessnesses is the fearlessnesses. Subhūti, the kinds of exact knowledge are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the kinds of exact knowledge is the kinds of exact knowledge. Subhūti, great loving kindness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in great loving kindness is great loving kindness. Subhūti, great compassion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in great compassion is great compassion. Subhūti, the distinct qualities of the buddhas are neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the distinct qualities of the buddhas is the distinct qualities of the buddhas.

26.45 “Subhūti, knowledge of all the dhammas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in knowledge of all the dhammas is knowledge of all the dhammas. Subhūti, the knowledge of the aspects of the path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the knowledge of the aspects of the

- path. Subhūti, all-aspect omniscience is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the absence of an essential nature in all-aspect omniscience is all-aspect omniscience.
- 26.46 “Subhūti, the past limit of physical forms is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity,⁸²⁵ is physical forms. Subhūti, the future limit [F.329.b] of physical forms is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is physical forms. Subhūti, the present state of physical forms is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is physical forms.
- 26.47 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings. Subhūti, the present state of feelings is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings.
- 26.48 “Subhūti, the past limit of perceptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is perceptions. Subhūti, the future limit of perceptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is perceptions. Subhūti, the present state of perceptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is perceptions.
- 26.49 “Subhūti, the past limit of formative dispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative dispositions. Subhūti, the future limit of formative dispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative dispositions. Subhūti, the present state of formative dispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative dispositions.
- 26.50 “Subhūti, the past limit of consciousness is neither fettered [F.330.a] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness.

26.51 “Subhūti, the past limit of the eyes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the eyes. Subhūti, the future limit of the eyes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the eyes. Subhūti, the present state of the eyes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the eyes.

26.52 “Subhūti, the past limit of the ears is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the ears. Subhūti, the future limit of the ears is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the ears. Subhūti, the present state of the ears is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the ears.

26.53 “Subhūti, the past limit of the nose is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the nose. Subhūti, the future limit of the nose is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the nose. Subhūti, the present state of the nose [F.330.b] is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the nose.

26.54 “Subhūti, the past limit of the tongue is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the tongue. Subhūti, the future limit of the tongue is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the tongue. Subhūti, the present state of the tongue is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the tongue.

26.55 “Subhūti, the past limit of the body is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the body. Subhūti, the future limit of the body is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the body. Subhūti, the present state of the body is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the body.

26.56 “Subhūti, the past limit of the mental faculty is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the mental faculty. Subhūti, the future limit of the mental faculty is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the mental faculty. Subhūti, the present state of the mental faculty is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the mental faculty.

26.57 “Subhūti, the past limit of sights is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sights. Subhūti, the future limit of sights is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sights. Subhūti, the present state of [F.331.a] sights is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sights.

26.58 “Subhūti, the past limit of sounds is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sounds. Subhūti, the future limit of sounds is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sounds. Subhūti, the present state of sounds is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sounds.

26.59 “Subhūti, the past limit of odors is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is odors. Subhūti, the future limit of odors is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is odors. Subhūti, the present state of odors is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is odors.

26.60 “Subhūti, the past limit of tastes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tastes. Subhūti, the future limit of tastes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tastes. Subhūti, the present state of tastes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tastes.

- 26.61 “Subhūti, the past limit of tangibles is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tangibles. Subhūti, the future limit of tangibles is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tangibles. Subhūti, the present state of tangibles is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask [F.331.b] why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tangibles.
- 26.62 “Subhūti, the past limit of mental phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of mental phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of mental phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental phenomena.
- 26.63 “Subhūti, the past limit of visual consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visual consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of visual consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visual consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of visual consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visual consciousness.
- 26.64 “Subhūti, the past limit of auditory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is auditory consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of auditory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is auditory consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of auditory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is auditory consciousness.
- 26.65 “Subhūti, the past limit of olfactory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, [F.332.a] which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is olfactory consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of olfactory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is olfactory consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of olfactory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is olfactory consciousness.

26.66 “Subhūti, the past limit of gustatory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is gustatory consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of gustatory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is gustatory consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of gustatory consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is gustatory consciousness.

26.67 “Subhūti, the past limit of tactile consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tactile consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of tactile consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tactile consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of tactile consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is tactile consciousness.

26.68 “Subhūti, the past limit of mental consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental consciousness. [F.332.b] Subhūti, the future limit of mental consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of mental consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mental consciousness.

26.69 “Subhūti, the past limit of visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is visually compounded sensory contact.

- 26.70 “Subhūti, the past limit of aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aurally compounded sensory contact.
- 26.71 “Subhūti, the past limit of nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of [F.333.a] nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is nasally compounded sensory contact.
- 26.72 “Subhūti, the past limit of lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is lingually compounded sensory contact.
- 26.73 “Subhūti, the past limit of corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is corporeally compounded sensory contact.

- 26.74 “Subhūti, the past limit of mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mentally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mentally compounded sensory contact. [F.333.b] Subhūti, the present state of mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is mentally compounded sensory contact.
- 26.75 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact.
- 26.76 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact.
- 26.77 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is neither [F.334.a] fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact.

26.78 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact.

26.79 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact. [F.334.b]

26.80 “Subhūti, the past limit of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact.

26.81 “Subhūti, the past limit of the earth element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the earth element. Subhūti, the future limit of the earth element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the earth element. Subhūti, the present state of the earth element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the earth element.

26.82 “Subhūti, the past limit of the water element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the water element. Subhūti, the future limit of the water element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the water element. Subhūti, the present state of the water element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the water element.

26.83 “Subhūti, [F.335.a] the past limit of the fire element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fire element. Subhūti, the future limit of the fire element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fire element. Subhūti, the present state of the fire element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fire element.

26.84 “Subhūti, the past limit of the wind element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the wind element. Subhūti, the future limit of the wind element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the wind element. Subhūti, the present state of the wind element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the wind element.

26.85 “Subhūti, the past limit of the space element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the space element. Subhūti, the future limit of the space element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a

- nonentity, is the space element. Subhūti, the present state of the space element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the space element.
- 26.86 “Subhūti, the past limit of the consciousness element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, [F.335.b] is the consciousness element. Subhūti, the future limit of the consciousness element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the consciousness element. Subhūti, the present state of the consciousness element is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the consciousness element.
- 26.87 “Subhūti, the past limit of ignorance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is ignorance. Subhūti, the future limit of ignorance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is ignorance. Subhūti, the present state of ignorance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is ignorance.
- 26.88 “Subhūti, the past limit of formative predispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative predispositions. Subhūti, the future limit of formative predispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative predispositions. Subhūti, the present state of formative predispositions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is formative predispositions.
- 26.89 “Subhūti, the past limit of consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness. Subhūti, the future limit of consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness. Subhūti, the present state of consciousness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is consciousness. [F.336.a]
- 26.90 “Subhūti, the past limit of name and form is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is name and form. Subhūti, the future limit of name and form is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is name and form. Subhūti, the present state of name and form is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is name and form.

26.91 “Subhūti, the past limit of the six sense fields is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the six sense fields. Subhūti, the future limit of the six sense fields is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the six sense fields. Subhūti, the present state of the six sense fields is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the six sense fields.

26.92 “Subhūti, the past limit of sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensory contact. Subhūti, the future limit of sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensory contact. Subhūti, the present state of sensory contact is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensory contact.

26.93 “Subhūti, the past limit of sensation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensation. Subhūti, the future limit of sensation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensation. Subhūti, the present state of sensation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, [F.336.b] it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is sensation.

26.94 “Subhūti, the past limit of craving is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is craving. Subhūti, the future limit of craving is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is craving. Subhūti, the present state of craving is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is craving.

26.95 “Subhūti, the past limit of grasping is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is grasping. Subhūti, the future limit of grasping is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is grasping. Subhūti, the present state of grasping is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is grasping.

26.96 “Subhūti, the past limit of the rebirth process is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the rebirth process. Subhūti, the future limit of the rebirth process is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the rebirth process. Subhūti, the present state of the rebirth process is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the rebirth process.

26.97 “Subhūti, the past limit of birth is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is birth. Subhūti, the future limit of birth is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is birth. Subhūti, the present state of birth is neither fettered [F.337.a] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is birth.

26.98 “Subhūti, the past limit of aging and death is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aging and death. Subhūti, the future limit of aging and death is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aging and death. Subhūti, the present state of aging and death is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is aging and death.

26.99 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of generosity is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of generosity. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of generosity is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of generosity. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of generosity is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of generosity.

26.100 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of ethical discipline is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of ethical discipline. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of ethical discipline is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of ethical discipline. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of ethical discipline is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of ethical discipline. [F.337.b]

26.101 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of tolerance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of tolerance. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of tolerance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of tolerance. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of tolerance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of tolerance.

26.102 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of perseverance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of perseverance. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of perseverance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of perseverance. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of perseverance is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of perseverance.

26.103 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of meditative concentration is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of meditative concentration. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of meditative concentration is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of meditative concentration. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of meditative concentration is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, [F.338.a] is the perfection of meditative concentration.

26.104 “Subhūti, the past limit of the perfection of wisdom is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of wisdom. Subhūti, the future limit of the perfection of wisdom is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of wisdom. Subhūti, the present state of the perfection of wisdom is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the perfection of wisdom. [B24]

26.105 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of internal phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of internal phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of internal phenomena.

26.106 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of external phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of external phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of external phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external phenomena.

26.107 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is neither fettered [F.338.b] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external and internal phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external and internal phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of external and internal phenomena.

26.108 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of emptiness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of emptiness. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of emptiness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of emptiness. Subhūti,

- the present state of the emptiness of emptiness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of emptiness.
- 26.109 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of great extent is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of great extent. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of great extent is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of great extent. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of great extent is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of great extent.
- 26.110 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of ultimate reality is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of ultimate reality. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of ultimate reality is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, [F.339.a] which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of ultimate reality. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of ultimate reality is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of ultimate reality.
- 26.111 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of conditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of conditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of conditioned phenomena.
- 26.112 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena.

26.113 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of the unlimited is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of the unlimited. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of the unlimited is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, [F.339.b] is the emptiness of the unlimited. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of the unlimited is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of the unlimited.

26.114 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end.

26.115 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of nonexclusion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonexclusion. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of nonexclusion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonexclusion. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of nonexclusion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonexclusion.

26.116 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of inherent nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of inherent nature. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of inherent nature is neither fettered nor liberated. [F.340.a] If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of inherent nature. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of inherent nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of inherent nature.

26.117 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of all phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of all phenomena. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of all phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of all phenomena. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of all phenomena is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of all phenomena.

26.118 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics.

26.119 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is neither fettered [F.340.b] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended.

26.120 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonentities. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonentities. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of nonentities.

26.121 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of essential nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of essential nature. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of essential nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of essential nature. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of essential nature is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of essential nature.

26.122 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, [F.341.a] it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities.

26.123 “Subhūti, the past limit of the applications of mindfulness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the applications of mindfulness. Subhūti, the future limit of the applications of mindfulness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the applications of mindfulness. Subhūti, the present state of the applications of mindfulness is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the applications of mindfulness.

26.124 “Subhūti, the past limit of the correct exertions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the correct exertions. Subhūti, the future limit of the correct exertions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the correct exertions. Subhūti, the present state of the correct exertions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the correct exertions.

26.125 “Subhūti, the past limit of the supports for miraculous ability is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the supports for miraculous ability. Subhūti, the future limit of the supports for miraculous ability is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, [F.341.b] Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the supports for miraculous ability. Subhūti, the present state of the supports for miraculous ability is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the supports for miraculous ability.

26.126 “Subhūti, the past limit of the faculties is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the faculties. Subhūti, the future limit of the faculties is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the faculties. Subhūti, the present state of the faculties is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the faculties.

26.127 “Subhūti, the past limit of the powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers. Subhūti, the future limit of the powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers. Subhūti, the present state of the powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers.

26.128 “Subhūti, the past limit of the branches of enlightenment is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the branches of enlightenment. Subhūti, the future limit of the branches of enlightenment is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the branches of enlightenment. [F.342.a] Subhūti, the present state of the branches of enlightenment is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the branches of enlightenment.

- 26.129 “Subhūti, the past limit of the noble eightfold path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the noble eightfold path. Subhūti, the future limit of the noble eightfold path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the noble eightfold path. Subhūti, the present state of the noble eightfold path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the noble eightfold path.
- 26.130 “Subhūti, the past limit of the truths of the noble ones is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the truths of the noble ones. Subhūti, the future limit of the truths of the noble ones is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the truths of the noble ones. Subhūti, the present state of the truths of the noble ones is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the truths of the noble ones.
- 26.131 “Subhūti, the past limit of the meditative concentrations is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative concentrations. Subhūti, the future limit of the meditative concentrations is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, [F.342.b] which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative concentrations. Subhūti, the present state of the meditative concentrations is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative concentrations.
- 26.132 “Subhūti, the past limit of the immeasurable attitudes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the immeasurable attitudes. Subhūti, the future limit of the immeasurable attitudes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the immeasurable attitudes. Subhūti, the present state of the immeasurable attitudes is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the immeasurable attitudes.
- 26.133 “Subhūti, the past limit of the formless absorptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the formless absorptions. Subhūti, the future limit of the formless absorptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the formless absorptions. Subhūti, the present state of the formless absorptions is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the formless absorptions.

26.134 “Subhūti, the past limit of the liberations is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the liberations. Subhūti, the future limit of the liberations is neither fettered [F.343.a] nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the liberations. Subhūti, the present state of the liberations is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the liberations.

26.135 “Subhūti, the past limit of the serial steps of meditative absorption is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the serial steps of meditative absorption. Subhūti, the future limit of the serial steps of meditative absorption is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the serial steps of meditative absorption. Subhūti, the present state of the serial steps of meditative absorption is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the serial steps of meditative absorption.

26.136 “Subhūti, the past limit of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation. Subhūti, the future limit of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation. Subhūti, the present state of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, [F.343.b] it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation.

26.137 “Subhūti, the past limit of the extrasensory powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the extrasensory powers. Subhūti, the future limit of the extrasensory powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential

- nature of a nonentity, is the extrasensory powers. Subhūti, the present state of the extrasensory powers is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the extrasensory powers.
- 26.138 “Subhūti, the past limit of the meditative stabilities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative stabilities. Subhūti, the future limit of the meditative stabilities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative stabilities. Subhūti, the present state of the meditative stabilities is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the meditative stabilities.
- 26.139 “Subhūti, the past limit of the dhāraṇī gateways is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the dhāraṇī gateways. Subhūti, the future limit of the dhāraṇī gateways is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the dhāraṇī gateways. Subhūti, the present state of the dhāraṇī gateways is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the dhāraṇī gateways.
- 26.140 “Subhūti, the past limit of the powers of the tathāgatas [F.344.a] is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers of the tathāgatas. Subhūti, the future limit of the powers of the tathāgatas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers of the tathāgatas. Subhūti, the present state of the powers of the tathāgatas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the powers of the tathāgatas.
- 26.141 “Subhūti, the past limit of the fearlessnesses is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fearlessnesses. Subhūti, the future limit of the fearlessnesses is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fearlessnesses. Subhūti, the present state of the fearlessnesses is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the fearlessnesses.

- 26.142 “Subhūti, the past limit of the kinds of exact knowledge is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the kinds of exact knowledge. Subhūti, the future limit of the kinds of exact knowledge is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the kinds of exact knowledge. Subhūti, the present state of the kinds of exact knowledge is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the kinds of exact knowledge. [F.344.b]
- 26.143 “Subhūti, the past limit of great compassion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is great compassion. Subhūti, the future limit of great compassion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is great compassion. Subhūti, the present state of great compassion is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is great compassion.
- 26.144 “Subhūti, the past limit of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the distinct qualities of the buddhas. Subhūti, the future limit of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the distinct qualities of the buddhas. Subhūti, the present state of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the distinct qualities of the buddhas.
- 26.145 “Subhūti, the past limit of knowledge of all the dharmas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is knowledge of all the dharmas. Subhūti, the future limit of knowledge of all the dharmas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is knowledge of all the dharmas. Subhūti, the present state of knowledge of all the dharmas is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is knowledge of all the dharmas.
- 26.146 “Subhūti, [F.345.a] the past limit of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the knowledge of the aspects of the path. Subhūti, the future limit of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the knowledge of the aspects of the path. Subhūti, the present state of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is the knowledge of the aspects of the path.

26.147 “Subhūti, the past limit of all-aspect omniscience is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the past limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is all-aspect omniscience. Subhūti, the future limit of all-aspect omniscience is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the future limit, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is all-aspect omniscience. Subhūti, the present state of all-aspect omniscience is neither fettered nor liberated. If you ask why, Subhūti, it is because the present, which has the essential nature of a nonentity, is all-aspect omniscience.”

26.148 Subhūti said, “Blessed Lord, it is difficult for those who do not persevere, who have not cultivated the roots of virtue, who have fallen into the clutches of evil associates, who are under the sway of māras, who are indolent, who have given up perseverance, who are forgetful, and who are without alertness to believe in the perfection of wisdom.”

26.149 “Subhūti, so it is,” replied the Blessed One. “Subhūti, it is difficult for those who do not persevere, who have not cultivated the roots of virtue, who have fallen into the clutches of evil associates, who are under the sway of māras, who are indolent, who have given up perseverance, [F.345.b] who are forgetful, and who are without alertness to believe in the perfection of wisdom.

26.150 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of physical forms is the purity of the fruition, the purity of feelings is the purity of the fruition, the purity of perceptions is the purity of the fruition, the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of the fruition; the purity of the eyes is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the ears is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the nose is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the tongue is the purity of the fruition, [F.346.a] the purity of the body is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of the fruition; the purity of sights is the purity of the fruition, the purity of sounds is the purity of the fruition, the purity of odors is the purity of the fruition, the purity of tastes is the purity of the fruition, the purity of tangibles is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of the fruition; the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of the fruition; the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition; the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the fruition; the purity of the earth element is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the water element is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the fire element is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the wind element is the purity of the fruition, [F.346.b] the purity of the space element is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of the fruition; the purity of ignorance is the purity of the fruition, the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of the fruition, the purity of consciousness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of name and form is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of the fruition, the purity of sensory contact is the purity of the fruition, the purity of sensation is the purity of the fruition, the purity of craving is the purity of the fruition, the purity of grasping is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of the fruition, the purity of birth is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of the fruition; the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of the fruition; the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena [F.347.a] is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of the fruition; the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of the fruition, [F.347.b] the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the faculties is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the powers is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the seven branches of enlightenment is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of the fruition; and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the immeasurable attitudes is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the four fearlessnesses is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the four kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of the fruition, the purity of great compassion is the purity of the fruition, [F.348.a] the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of the fruition, the purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is the purity of the fruition, the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of the fruition, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of the fruition.

26.151 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity⁸²⁶ of physical forms is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.348.b] is the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.152 “The utter purity of the eyes is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.349.a] is the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.153 “The utter purity of sights is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of odors, [F.349.b] so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.154 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.350.a] is the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of mental consciousness, [F.350.b] so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.155 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact [F.351.a] is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.156 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.351.b] The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, [F.352.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.157 “The utter purity of the earth element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.352.b] is the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.158 “The utter purity of ignorance is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form [F.353.a] is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, [F.353.b] and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.159 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.354.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.354.b] The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.160 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.355.a] The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom [F.355.b] is the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.356.a] so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature

[F.356.b] and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B25]

- 26.161 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, [F.357.a] and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, [F.357.b] so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.162 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.358.a] The utter purity of the eight liberations is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.358.b] The utter purity of all the meditative stabilities is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of all the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of all the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all the dhāraṇī gateways is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of all the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of all the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.163 “The utter purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the four fearlessnesses is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the four fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the four fearlessnesses and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the four kinds of exact knowledge [F.359.a] is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the four kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the four kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.164 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, [F.359.b] and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.165 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of the self is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of physical forms are not two, [F.360.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of one born of

Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a child of Manu, [F.360.b] so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of physical forms, and the purity of physical forms is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of physical forms are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.166 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a being, [F.361.a] so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.361.b] and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings, and the purity of feelings is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.167 “The purity of the self is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided [F.362.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.362.b] and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of perceptions, and the purity of perceptions is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of perceptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.168 “The purity of the self is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being [F.363.a] and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided [F.363.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.169 “The purity of the self is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and purity of consciousness [F.364.a] is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of consciousness, [F.364.b] and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and purity of consciousness is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct.

26.170 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of the self is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the eyes [F.365.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of one born of

Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.365.b] and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the eyes, and the purity of the eyes is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the eyes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.171 “The purity of the self is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the ears, [F.366.a] and the purity of the ears is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.366.b] and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the ears, and the purity of the ears is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the ears are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.172 “The purity of the self is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.367.a] The purity of a life form is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose

[F.367.b] is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the nose, and the purity of the nose is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the nose are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.173 “The purity of the self is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.368.a] and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.368.b] The purity of a knower is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the tongue, and the purity of the tongue is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the tongue are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.174 “The purity of the self is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the body are not two, [F.369.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the body are not two, [F.369.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the body, and the purity of the body is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the body are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.175 “The purity of the self is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty [F.370.a] is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the mental faculty, and the purity of the mental faculty [F.370.b] is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the mental faculty are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.176 “The purity of the self is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights [F.371.a] is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer [F.371.b] is the purity of sights, and the purity of sights is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of sights are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.177 “The purity of the self is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person [F.372.a] and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of sounds, and the purity of sounds is the purity of a viewer, [F.372.b] so this purity of a viewer and this purity of sounds are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.178 “The purity of the self is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided [F.373.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of odors, and the purity of odors is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of odors are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.373.b]

26.179 “The purity of the self is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of tastes [F.374.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of tastes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of tastes, and the purity of tastes is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of tastes are not two, [F.374.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.180 “The purity of the self is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.375.a] The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of tangibles, and the purity of tangibles is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of tangibles are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.375.b] are no different, and are not distinct.

26.181 “The purity of the self is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of mental phenomena are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.376.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of mental phenomena, and the purity of mental phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of mental phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.376.b] are no different, and are not distinct.

26.182 “The purity of the self is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of visual consciousness, [F.377.a] and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of [F.377.b] visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of visual consciousness, and the purity of visual consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of visual consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.183 “The purity of the self is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual [F.378.a] is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer [F.378.b] is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of auditory consciousness, and the purity of auditory consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of auditory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.184 “The purity of the self is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of olfactory consciousness, [F.379.a] and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of olfactory consciousness, [F.379.b] and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not

two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of olfactory consciousness, and the purity of olfactory consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of olfactory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.380.a]

26.185 “The purity of the self is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.380.b] The purity of a person is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of gustatory consciousness, [F.381.a] and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of gustatory consciousness, and the purity of gustatory consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of gustatory consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.186 “The purity of the self is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, [F.381.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.382.a] and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of tactile consciousness, and the purity of tactile consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of tactile consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [V20] [F.1.b] [B1]

26.187 “The purity of the self is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is [F.2.a] the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, [F.2.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of mental consciousness, and the purity of mental consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of mental consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.188 “The purity of the self is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact [F.3.a] is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu [F.3.b] is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of visually compounded sensory contact are not two, [F.4.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.189 “The purity of the self is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact [F.4.b] is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.5.a] and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.190 “The purity of the self is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, [F.5.b] so this purity of an individual and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity [F.6.a] of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.191 “The purity of the self is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, [F.6.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact [F.7.a] is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.192 “The purity of the self is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form [F.7.b] and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, [F.8.a] and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.193 “The purity of the self is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.8.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact [F.9.a] is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.194 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, [F.9.b] so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, [F.10.a] and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, [F.10.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.195 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, [F.11.a] so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by [F.11.b] aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact are not two, [F.12.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.196 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact

[F.12.b] is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.13.a] The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.197 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact [F.13.b] is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is [F.14.a] the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and

this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower [F.14.b] and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.198 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, [F.15.a] and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.15.b] and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.199 “The purity of the self is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, [F.16.a] and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, [F.16.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by [F.17.a] mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.200 “The purity of the self is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element [F.17.b] is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element [F.18.a] is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the earth element, and the purity of the earth element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the earth element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.201 “The purity of the self is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the water element, [F.18.b] and the purity of the water element is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the water element, [F.19.a] and the purity of the water element is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the water element, and the purity of the water element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the water element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.202 “The purity of the self is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the fire element, [F.19.b] and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element [F.20.a] is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the fire element, and the purity of the fire element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the fire element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.203 “The purity of the self is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element [F.20.b] is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of an agent, [F.21.a] so this purity of an agent and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the wind element, and the purity of the wind element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the wind element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.204 “The purity of the self is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the space element, [F.21.b] and the purity of the space element is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity [F.22.a] of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the space element, and the purity of the space element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the space element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.205 “The purity of the self is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being [F.22.b] and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.23.a] The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the consciousness element, and the purity of the consciousness element is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the consciousness element are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.206 “The purity of the self is the purity of ignorance, [F.23.b] and the purity of ignorance is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.24.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of ignorance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B2]

26.207 “The purity of the self is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, [F.24.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions [F.25.a] is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.208 “The purity of the self is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a being, [F.25.b] so this purity of a being and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of consciousness, [F.26.a] and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.209 “The purity of the self is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.26.b] The purity of a being is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.27.a] The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.210 “The purity of the self is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, [F.27.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.28.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.211 “The purity of the self is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of the self, [F.28.b] so this purity of the self and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.29.a] The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.212 “The purity of the self is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being [F.29.b] is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a child of Manu, [F.30.a] so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.213 “The purity of the self is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self [F.30.b] and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent [F.31.a] is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.214 “The purity of the self is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping [F.31.b] is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent [F.32.a] and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of grasping are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.215 “The purity of the self is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the rebirth process [F.32.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.33.a] The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.216 “The purity of the self is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a life form, [F.33.b] so this purity of a life form and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower [F.34.a] is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.217 “The purity of the self is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of life, [F.34.b] so this purity of life and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.35.a] The purity of a viewer is the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.218 “The purity of the self is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of an individual, [F.35.b] so this purity of an individual and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.36.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.219 “The purity of the self is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.36.b] The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a child of

Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent [F.37.a] is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.220 “The purity of the self is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, [F.37.b] and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of one born of Manu, [F.38.a] so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is the purity of a viewer, [F.38.b] so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.221 “The purity of the self is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual [F.39.a] and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is [F.39.b] the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.222 “The purity of the self is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration [F.40.a] is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, [F.40.b] and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.223 “The purity of the self [F.41.a] is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.41.b] The purity of a person is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity [F.42.a] of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.224 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life [F.42.b] and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena [F.43.a] is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.225 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.43.b] The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.44.a]

The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.226 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena [F.44.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of an agent, [F.45.a] so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not

two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.227 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.45.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, [F.46.a] and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu

and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B3]

26.228 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, [F.46.b] and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.47.a] and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent [F.47.b] is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.229 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.48.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.48.b] The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.230 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena [F.49.a] is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and [F.49.b] this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.231 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being [F.50.a] and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, [F.50.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.51.a]

26.232 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are not [F.51.b] different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.52.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.233 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end [F.52.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of [F.53.a] a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and that which has neither beginning nor end not distinct.

26.234 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion [F.53.b] is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.54.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, [F.54.b] and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.235 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual [F.55.a] and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided [F.55.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.236 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.56.a] and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena [F.56.b] is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.237 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics [F.57.a] is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics [F.57.b] is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is the purity of a viewer, [F.58.a] so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.238 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of [F.58.b] the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are [F.59.a] not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.239 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, [F.59.b] and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities [F.60.a] is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.240 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a being, so this purity of a [F.60.b] being and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu [F.61.a] is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of the emptiness of essential nature is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.241 “The purity of the self is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of [F.61.b] nonentities is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person [F.62.a] is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer [F.62.b] and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.242 “The purity of the self is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of [F.63.a] the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.63.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.243 “The purity of the self is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the correct exertions, [F.64.a] and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the correct exertions [F.64.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of the correct exertions is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.244 “The purity of the self is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, [F.65.a] and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a person, so this purity of [F.65.b] a person and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer [F.66.a] is the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.245 “The purity of the self is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the faculties, [F.66.b] and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is the purity of a viewer, [F.67.a] so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B4]

26.246 “The purity of the self is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a person, [F.67.b] so this purity of a person and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.68.a] are no different, and are not distinct.

26.247 “The purity of the self is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment [F.68.b] is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, [F.69.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.248 “The purity of the self is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the noble eightfold path [F.69.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of an agent, so this purity of [F.70.a] an agent and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of the noble eightfold path is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the noble eightfold path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.249 “The purity of the self is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a being, [F.70.b] so this purity of a being and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.71.a] and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the truths of the noble ones are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.250 “The purity of the self is the purity [F.71.b] of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the meditative concentrations, [F.72.a] and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.251 “The purity of the [F.72.b] self is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided [F.73.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the four immeasurable attitudes [F.73.b] is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the four immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.252 “The purity of the self is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual [F.74.a] is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent [F.74.b] and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.253 “The purity of the self is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a being, so [F.75.a] this purity of a being and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.75.b] are not different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.254 “The purity of the self is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, [F.76.a] and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption [F.76.b] is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity [F.77.a] of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.255 “The purity of the self is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness [F.77.b] is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of emptiness, and the purity [F.78.a] of emptiness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of emptiness, and the purity of emptiness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.256 “The purity of the self is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.78.b] and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this [F.79.a] purity of one born of Manu and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of signlessness, and the purity of signlessness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of signlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.257 “The purity of the self is the purity of wishlessness, and [F.79.b] the purity of wishlessness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of wishlessness, [F.80.a] and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of wishlessness, and the purity of wishlessness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided [F.80.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.258 “The purity of the self is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of life, so this purity of life and purity of the extrasensory powers is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and purity of the extrasensory powers is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a person, [F.81.a] so this purity of a person and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are [F.81.b] not different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.259 “The purity of the self is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.82.a] a person is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of [F.82.b] the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B5]

26.260 “The purity of the self is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

The purity of an individual is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.83.a] The purity of a person is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, [F.83.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.261 “The purity of the self is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual [F.84.a] is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.84.b] The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.262 “The purity of the self is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of life, so this purity [F.85.a] of life and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent [F.85.b] and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.263 “The purity of the self is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge [F.86.a] is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu [F.86.b] and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.264 “The purity of the self is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.87.a] a being is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, [F.87.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.265 “The purity of the self is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity [F.88.a] of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu [F.88.b] is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.89.a]

26.266 “The purity of the self is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of [F.89.b] the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, [F.90.a] and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.267 “The purity of the self is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.90.b] of a life form is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu [F.91.a] is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, and the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.268 “The purity of the self is the purity [F.91.b] of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the [F.92.a] purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity [F.92.b] of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the fruit of oncereturner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the fruit of once-returner, and the purity of the fruit of once-returner is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the fruit of once-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.269 “The purity of the self is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner [F.93.a] is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the fruit of non-returner [F.93.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the fruit of non-returner, and the purity of the fruit of non-returner is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the fruit of non-returner are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.270 “The purity of the self is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of arhatship, [F.94.a] and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of arhatship are not [F.94.b] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of arhatship, and the purity of arhatship is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of arhatship are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.271 “The purity of the self is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity [F.95.a] of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of [F.95.b] a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of individual enlightenment, and the purity of individual enlightenment is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of individual enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.272 “The purity of the self is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path [F.96.a] is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a person is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of the knowledge of aspects of the path [F.96.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a knower is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided [F.97.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.273 “The purity of the self is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of the self, so this purity of the self and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a being is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a being, so this purity of a being and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a life form is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a life form, so this purity of a life form and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of life is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of life, so this purity of life and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an individual is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of an individual, so this purity of an individual and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.97.b] The purity of a person is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a person, so this purity of a person and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of one born of Manu is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of one born of Manu, so this purity of one born of Manu and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a child of Manu is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a child of Manu, so this purity of a child of Manu and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an agent is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of an agent, so this purity of an agent and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of an experiencer is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of an experiencer, so this purity of an experiencer and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.98.a] a knower is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a knower, so this purity of a knower and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of a viewer is the purity of all-aspect omniscience, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is the purity of a viewer, so this purity of a viewer and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B6]

- 26.274 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of the self [F.98.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.275 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.276 “The utter purity of sights [F.99.a] is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.277 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the [F.99.b] self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.278 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact [F.100.a] is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.279 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, [F.100.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self

is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.280 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to [F.101.a] the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.281 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, [F.101.b] so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of the self,

and the utter purity of the self is owing to [F.102.a] the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.282 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of [F.102.b] the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.283 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena [F.103.a] is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self [F.103.b] is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness [F.104.a] of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.284 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of the self are not two, [F.104.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.285 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.105.a] of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of emptiness, so this utter purity of emptiness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.105.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of signlessness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of signlessness, so this utter purity of signlessness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of wishlessness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of wishlessness, so this utter purity of wishlessness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.286 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of the self, [F.106.a] and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.287 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-returner [F.106.b] is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of the self, and the utter purity of the self is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of the self are not two, cannot be divided [F.107.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B7]

26.288 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.289 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being [F.107.b] is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.290 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity [F.108.a] of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.291 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of [F.108.b] a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.292 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity [F.109.a] of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.293 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by [F.109.b] aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.294 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of [F.110.a] the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.295 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to [F.110.b] the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and [F.111.a] this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.296 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline [F.111.b] is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.297 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of [F.112.a] the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena [F.112.b] is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a being, [F.113.a] and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of [F.113.b] a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.298 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of [F.114.a] the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.299 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions [F.114.b] is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of emptiness, so this utter purity of emptiness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of signlessness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of signlessness, so this utter purity of signlessness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of wishlessness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to [F.115.a] the utter purity of wishlessness, so this utter purity of wishlessness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.300 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.115.b] and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.301 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-returner is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of [F.116.a] a being is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a being, and the utter purity of a being is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a being are not two, cannot be divided [F.116.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.302 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.303 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form [F.117.a] is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.304 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to [F.117.b] the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.305 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, [F.118.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.306 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form [F.118.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.307 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.119.a] so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.308 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element [F.119.b] is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.309 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness [F.120.a] and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of [F.120.b] a life form is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.310 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of [F.121.a] a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.311 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.121.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a life form are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a life form are not two, [F.122.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a life form [F.122.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.312 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a life form are not two, [F.123.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.313 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions [F.123.b] is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of emptiness, so this utter purity of emptiness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of signlessness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of signlessness, so this utter purity of signlessness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of wishlessness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of wishlessness, so this utter purity of wishlessness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to [F.124.a] the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.314 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity [F.124.b] of a life form is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.315 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-returner is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of a life form, [F.125.a] and the utter purity of a life form is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a life form, and the utter purity of a life form is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a life form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.316 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of life [F.125.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.317 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of life [F.126.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.318 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided [F.126.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.319 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of [F.127.a] mental consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.320 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of one [F.127.b] who lives is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.321 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory

contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life [F.128.a] is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.322 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of life, [F.128.b] and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.323 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, [F.129.a] so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death [F.129.b] is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.324 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be [F.130.a] divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.325 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.130.b] and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of [F.131.a] life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, [F.131.b] so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.326 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this [F.132.a] utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.327 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to [F.132.b] the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of emptiness, so this utter purity of emptiness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of signlessness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of signlessness, so this utter purity of signlessness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of wishlessness is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of wishlessness, so this utter purity of wishlessness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of [F.133.a] life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.328 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of [F.133.b] life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.329 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-

returner is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of [F.134.a] life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of life, and the utter purity of life is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of life are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B8]

26.330 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual [F.134.b] is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.331 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual [F.135.a] is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.332 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual [F.135.b] is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.333 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an [F.136.a] individual is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.334 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact [F.136.b] is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.335 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally

compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity [F.137.a] of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.336 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to [F.137.b] the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.337 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this [F.138.a] utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.138.b] of birth is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.338 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this

utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of [F.139.a] the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.339 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not [F.139.b] distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity [F.140.a] of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities [F.140.b] is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.340 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, [F.141.a] so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this

utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.341 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity [F.141.b] of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, [F.142.a] signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.⁸²⁷ The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.342 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to [F.142.b] the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.343 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-returner is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of an individual are not two, [F.143.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of an individual, and the utter purity of an individual is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of an individual are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B9]

26.344 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, [F.143.b] so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.345 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to [F.144.a] the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.346 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity [F.144.b] of a person is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.347 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, [F.145.a] so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.348 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.145.b] of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.349 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings [F.146.a] conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.350 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of [F.146.b] the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.351 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of [F.147.a] formative predispositions and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a person [F.147.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.352 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.148.a] and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.353 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of [F.148.b] the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, [F.149.a] and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.149.b] so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a person are not two, [F.150.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.354 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of a person are not two, [F.150.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.355 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity [F.151.a] of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity [F.151.b] of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.356 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, [F.152.a] so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.357 “The utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the fruit of having entered the stream, so this utter purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of once-returner is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the fruit of once-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of once-returner and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the fruit of non-returner, so this utter purity of the fruit of non-returner and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of arhatship is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to arhatship, so this arhatship and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to individual enlightenment, so this individual enlightenment and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.152.b] The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a person, and the utter purity of a person is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a person are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.358 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of one born of Manu [F.153.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.359 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of [F.153.b] the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.360 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.361 “The utter purity of [F.154.a] visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, [F.154.b] so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.362 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity [F.155.a] of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.363 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not

distinct. The utter purity [F.155.b] of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.364 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, [F.156.a] so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.365 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of [F.156.b] one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of one born of

Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, [F.157.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.366 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, [F.157.b] so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.367 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.158.a] of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, [F.158.b] so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of one born of Manu [F.159.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.368 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity [F.159.b] of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.160.a] and are not distinct.

26.369 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of [F.160.b] one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.370 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity [F.161.a] of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.371 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to [F.161.b] the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.⁸²⁸ The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of one born of Manu, and the utter purity of one born of Manu is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of one born of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.372 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.162.a] of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.373 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu [F.162.b] is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.374 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.163.a] The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.375 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this [F.163.b] utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of

Manu is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.376 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.164.a] of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.377 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and

are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact [F.164.b] and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.378 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of [F.165.a] the water element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.379 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity [F.165.b] of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity [F.166.a] of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.380 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.166.b] The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into [F.167.a] two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.381 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to [F.167.b] the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, [F.168.a] so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, [F.168.b] so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.382 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity [F.169.a] of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.383 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations [F.169.b] is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, [F.170.a] and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.384 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, [F.170.b] so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.385 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity a child of Manu is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided [F.171.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a child of Manu, and the utter purity of a child of Manu is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a child of Manu are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B10]

26.386 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to [F.171.b] the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.387 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.172.a] The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.388 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and [F.172.b] this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.389 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of [F.173.a] an agent is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.390 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity [F.173.b] of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.391 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact [F.174.a] and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.392 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, [F.174.b] and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.393 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity [F.175.a] of an agent is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of [F.175.b] the rebirth process and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.394 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of [F.176.a] an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.395 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena [F.176.b] and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of an agent, [F.177.a] and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, [F.177.b] so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.396 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of an agent [F.178.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path [F.178.b] and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.397 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of an agent, [F.179.a] and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.398 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent [F.179.b] is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of an agent [F.180.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.399 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity an agent is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of an agent, and the utter purity of an agent is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of an agent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.400 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity [F.180.b] of formative predispositions and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.401 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.181.a] of the body is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.402 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and [F.181.b] this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.403 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of [F.182.a] an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.404 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an

experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer [F.182.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.405 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by

nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not [F.183.a] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.406 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not [F.183.b] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.407 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of [F.184.a] formative predispositions and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity [F.184.b] of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.408 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.185.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.409 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena [F.185.b] is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity [F.186.a] of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are not [F.186.b] different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity [F.187.a] of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.410 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of [F.187.b] the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.411 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is [F.188.a] owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.188.b] and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.412 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and [F.189.a] this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.413 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharma is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity an experiencer is owing to knowledge of all the dharma, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharma and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of an experiencer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of an experiencer, and the utter purity of an experiencer is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of an experiencer [F.189.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B11]

26.414 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.415 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity [F.190.a] of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.416 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and [F.190.b] this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and utter purity of a knower is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and utter purity of a knower is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.417 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.191.a] The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.418 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity [F.191.b] of a knower is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and [F.192.a] this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.419 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by

aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact [F.192.b] is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.420 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element [F.193.a] and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.421 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity [F.193.b] of a knower is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity [F.194.a] of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.422 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity [F.194.b] of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.423 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and [F.195.a] internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity [F.195.b] of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a knower [F.196.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.196.b] are no different, and are not distinct.

26.424 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of [F.197.a] a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.425 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are not [F.197.b] different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities [F.198.a] and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.426 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.198.b] of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.427 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity a knower is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a knower, and the utter purity of a knower is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a knower are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.428 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is [F.199.a] owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.429 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity [F.199.b] of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.430 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity [F.200.a] of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.431 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity [F.200.b] of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.432 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact [F.201.a] is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.433 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to [F.201.b] the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.202.a] The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.434 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the space element, [F.202.b] so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.435 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields [F.203.a] is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity [F.203.b] of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.436 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, [F.204.a] so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.437 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity [F.204.b] of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to [F.205.a] the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to [F.205.b] the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.438 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity [F.206.a] of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of [F.206.b] the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.439 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the eight liberations is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to [F.207.a] the utter purity of the eight liberations, so this utter purity of the eight liberations and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways [F.207.b] is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.440 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion [F.208.a] and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. “The utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.441 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity a viewer is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of a viewer, and the utter purity of a viewer is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of a viewer are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B12]

26.442 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity [F.208.b] of desire is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of physical forms and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of feelings and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of perceptions and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.443 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the eyes and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity [F.209.a] of the ears and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the nose and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the tongue and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the body and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the mental faculty and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.444 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of sights and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of sounds and this purity [F.209.b] of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of odors and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of tastes and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of tangibles and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of mental phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.445 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of visual consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of auditory consciousness and this purity of [F.210.a] desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of olfactory consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of gustatory consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of tactile consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of mental consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.446 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.210.b] of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.447 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity [F.211.a] of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, [F.211.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.448 “The purity of the earth element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the earth element, so this purity of the earth element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the water element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the water element, so this purity of the water element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fire element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the fire element, so this purity of the fire element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the wind element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the wind element, so this purity of the wind element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the space element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire [F.212.a] is owing to the purity of the space element, so this purity of the space element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the consciousness element is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the consciousness element, so this purity of the consciousness element and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.449 “The purity of ignorance is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of ignorance, so this purity of ignorance and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of name and form is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of name and form, so this purity of name and form and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.212.b] The purity of the six sense fields is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the six sense fields, so this purity of the six sense fields and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensory contact is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of sensory contact, so this purity of sensory contact and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensation is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of sensation, so this purity of sensation and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of craving is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of craving, so this purity of craving and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of grasping is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of grasping, so this purity of grasping and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the rebirth process is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the rebirth process, so this purity of the rebirth process and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of birth is owing to [F.213.a] the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of birth, so this purity of birth and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aging and death is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of aging and death, so this purity of aging and death and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.450 “The purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, so this purity of the perfection of generosity and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this purity [F.213.b] of the perfection of perseverance and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.451 “The purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.214.a] The purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire [F.214.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, [F.215.a] so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.452 “The purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, [F.215.b] so this purity of the applications of mindfulness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the correct exertions is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, so this purity of the correct exertions and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the faculties is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the faculties, so this purity of the faculties and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the powers is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the powers, so this purity of the powers and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the purity of desire, [F.216.a] and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, so this purity of the noble eightfold path and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.453 “The purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, so this purity of the meditative concentrations and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, so this purity of the formless absorptions and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eight liberations is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the eight liberations, [F.216.b] so this purity of the eight liberations and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, so this purity of the extrasensory powers and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, so this purity of the meditative stabilities and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of [F.217.a] the dhāraṇī gateways, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.454 “The purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, so this purity of the fearlessnesses and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great loving kindness is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, so this purity of great loving kindness and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great compassion is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of great compassion, so this purity of great compassion and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.217.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.455 “The purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, so this purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of desire, and the purity of desire is owing to the purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this purity of all-aspect omniscience and this purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.456 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of physical forms and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity [F.218.a] of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of feelings and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of perceptions and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.457 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the eyes and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the ears and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the nose and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.218.b] The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the tongue and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the body and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the mental faculty and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.458 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of sights and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of sounds and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of odors and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of tastes and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles [F.219.a] is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of tangibles and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of mental phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.459 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of visual consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of auditory consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of olfactory consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of gustatory consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.219.b] The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of tactile consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of mental consciousness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.460 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact [F.220.a] and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.461 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by

aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.220.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.462 “The purity of the earth element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the earth element, so this purity of the earth element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the water element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the water element, so this purity of the water element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fire element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the fire element, [F.221.a] so this purity of the fire element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the wind element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the wind element, so this purity of the wind element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the space element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the space element, so this purity of the space element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the consciousness element is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the consciousness element, so this purity of the consciousness element and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.463 “The purity of ignorance is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of ignorance, so this purity of ignorance and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of [F.221.b] hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of name and form is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of name and form, so this purity of name and form and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the six sense fields is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the six sense fields, so this purity of the six sense fields and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensory contact is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of sensory contact, so this purity of sensory contact and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensation is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of sensation, so this purity of sensation and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of craving is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of craving, so this purity of craving and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of grasping is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of grasping, so this purity of grasping and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the rebirth process is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred [F.222.a] is owing to the purity of the rebirth process, so this purity of the rebirth process and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of birth is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of birth, so this purity of birth and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aging and death is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of aging and death, so this purity of aging and death and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.464 “The purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, so this purity of the perfection of generosity and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to [F.222.b] the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.465 “The purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.223.a] and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this purity [F.223.b] of the emptiness of the unlimited and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided [F.224.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.466 “The purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the correct exertions is owing to the purity of hatred, [F.224.b] and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, so this purity of the correct exertions and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the faculties is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the faculties, so this purity of the faculties and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the powers is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the powers, so this purity of the powers and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, so this purity of the noble eightfold path and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.467 “The purity of the truths of the noble ones [F.225.a] is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, so this purity of the meditative concentrations and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, so this purity of the formless absorptions and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eight liberations is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the eight liberations, so this purity of the eight liberations and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and [F.225.b] this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, so this purity of the extrasensory powers and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, so this purity of the meditative stabilities and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.468 “The purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fearlessnesses [F.226.a] is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, so this purity of the fearlessnesses and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great loving kindness is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, so this purity of great loving kindness and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great compassion is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of great compassion, so this purity of great compassion and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this purity of the eighteen distinct qualities of the buddhas and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.469 “The purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to knowledge of all the dharmas, so this purity of knowledge of all the dharmas [F.226.b] and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of hatred, and the purity of hatred is owing to the purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this purity of all-aspect omniscience and this purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B13]

26.470 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of physical forms and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of feelings and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of perceptions and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.227.a] formative predispositions is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.471 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the eyes and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the ears and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the nose and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the tongue and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the body [F.227.b] and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the mental faculty and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.472 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of sights and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of sounds and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of odors and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of tastes and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of tangibles and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, [F.228.a] so this purity of mental phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.473 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of visual consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of auditory consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of olfactory consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of gustatory consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of tactile consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.228.b] The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of mental consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.474 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of [F.229.a] corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.475 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity [F.229.b] of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion

is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.476 “The purity of the earth element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the earth element, so this purity of the earth element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the water element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the water element, so this purity of the water element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fire element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the fire element, so this [F.230.a] purity of the fire element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the wind element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the wind element, so this purity of the wind element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the space element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the space element, so this purity of the space element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the consciousness element is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the consciousness element, so this purity of the consciousness element and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.477 “The purity of ignorance is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of ignorance, so this purity of ignorance and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion [F.230.b] is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of name and form is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of name and form, so this purity of name and form and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the six sense fields is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the six sense fields, so this purity of the six sense fields and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensory contact is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of sensory contact, so this purity of sensory contact and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensation is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of sensation, so this purity of sensation and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of craving is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of craving, so this purity of craving and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of grasping is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of grasping, [F.231.a] so this purity of grasping and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the rebirth process is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the rebirth process, so this purity of the rebirth process and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of birth is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of birth, so this purity of birth and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aging and death is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of aging and death, so this purity of aging and death and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.478 “The purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, so this purity of the perfection of generosity and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the [F.231.b] perfection of tolerance, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.479 “The purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.232.a] and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion [F.232.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.233.a] so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities [F.233.b] and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.480 “The purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the correct exertions is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, so this purity of the correct exertions and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the faculties is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the faculties, so this purity of the faculties and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the powers is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the powers, so this purity of the powers and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, [F.234.a] so this purity of the branches of enlightenment and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, so this purity of the noble eightfold path and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.481 “The purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, so this purity of the meditative concentrations and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, so this purity of the formless absorptions [F.234.b] and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eight liberations is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the eight liberations, so this purity of the eight liberations and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, so this purity of the extrasensory powers and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative stabilities [F.235.a] is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, so this purity of the meditative stabilities and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.482 “The purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, so this purity of the fearlessnesses and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great loving kindness is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, so this purity of great loving kindness and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.235.b] The purity of great compassion is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of great compassion, so this purity of great compassion and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. “The purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.483 “The purity of the fruit of having entered the stream is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the fruit of having entered the stream, so this purity of the fruit of having entered the stream and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.⁸²⁹ The purity of the fruit of once-returner is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the fruit of once-returner, so this purity of the fruit of once-returner and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fruit of non-returner is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the fruit of non-returner, so this purity of the fruit of non-returner and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of arhatship is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion [F.236.a] is owing to the purity of arhatship, so this purity of arhatship and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of individual enlightenment is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of individual enlightenment, so this purity of individual enlightenment and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of delusion, and the purity of delusion is owing to the purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this purity of all-aspect omniscience and this purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.484 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity⁸³⁰ of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of desire [F.236.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.485 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of desire are not two, [F.237.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.486 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.237.b] The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.487 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity [F.238.a] of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.488 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, [F.238.b] so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.489 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by [F.239.a] visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this

utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity [F.239.b] of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.490 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.240.a] of the space element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.491 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity [F.240.b] of desire is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process [F.241.a] is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.492 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of [F.241.b] the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.493 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity [F.242.a] of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of desire [F.242.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an inherent nature, [F.243.a] so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to [F.243.b] the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.494 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity [F.244.a] of desire is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.495 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire [F.244.b] is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the liberations is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the liberations, so this utter purity of the liberations and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation [F.245.a] is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.496 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses [F.245.b] is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.497 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity [F.246.a] of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, so this utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of desire, and the utter purity of desire is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of desire are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B14]

26.498 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity [F.246.b] of hatred is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.499 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.247.a] of the body is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.500 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of hatred are not two, [F.247.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.501 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred [F.248.a] is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.502 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.248.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.503 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is

owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.249.a] The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.504 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.249.b] of the water element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.505 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of hatred [F.250.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving [F.250.b] and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.506 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline [F.251.a] and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.507 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena [F.251.b] and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of [F.252.a] hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of hatred, [F.252.b] and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to [F.253.a] the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.508 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided [F.253.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the powers is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.509 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, [F.254.a] so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the liberations is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the liberations, so this utter purity of the liberations and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity [F.254.b] of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.510 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of hatred are not two, [F.255.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.511 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharma is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharma, so the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharma and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity of hatred is owing to the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of hatred, and the utter purity [F.255.b] of hatred is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of hatred are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.512 “Moreover, Subhūti, the utter purity of physical forms is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of physical forms, so this utter purity of physical forms and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings, so this utter purity of feelings and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of perceptions is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of perceptions, so this utter purity of perceptions and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.256.a] and are not distinct.

26.513 “The utter purity of the eyes is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the eyes, so this utter purity of the eyes and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the ears is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the ears, so this utter purity of the ears and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the nose is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the nose, so this utter purity of the nose and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the tongue is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the tongue, so this utter purity of the tongue and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the body is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the body, so this utter purity of the body and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the mental faculty is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the mental faculty, so this utter purity of the mental faculty and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.514 “The utter purity of sights is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity [F.256.b] of delusion is owing to the utter purity of sights, so this utter purity of sights and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sounds is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of sounds, so this utter purity of sounds and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of odors is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of odors, so this utter purity of odors and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tastes is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of tastes, so this utter purity of tastes and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tangibles is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of tangibles, so this utter purity of tangibles and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of mental phenomena, so this utter purity of mental phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.515 “The utter purity of visual consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion [F.257.a] is owing to the utter purity of visual consciousness, so this utter purity of visual consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of auditory consciousness, so this utter purity of auditory consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of olfactory consciousness, so this utter purity of olfactory consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of gustatory consciousness, so this utter purity of gustatory consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of tactile consciousness, so this utter purity of tactile consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of mental consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of mental consciousness, so this utter purity of mental consciousness and this utter purity [F.257.b] of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.516 “The utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.258.a] The utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.517 “The utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by [F.258.b] lingually compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of

delusion is owing to the utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this utter purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.518 “The utter purity of the earth element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the earth element, so this utter purity of the earth element and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the water element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the water element, so this utter purity of the water element and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fire element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the fire element, so this utter purity of the fire element and this utter purity of delusion [F.259.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the wind element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the wind element, so this utter purity of the wind element and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the space element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the space element, so this utter purity of the space element and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the consciousness element is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the consciousness element, so this utter purity of the consciousness element and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.519 “The utter purity of ignorance is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of ignorance, so this utter purity of ignorance and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of formative predispositions is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of formative predispositions, so this utter purity of formative predispositions and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of consciousness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion [F.259.b] is owing to the utter purity of consciousness, so this utter purity of consciousness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of name and form is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of name and form, so this utter purity of name and form and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the six sense fields is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the six sense fields, so this utter purity of the six sense fields and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensory contact is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of sensory contact, so this utter purity of sensory contact and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of sensation is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of sensation, so this utter purity of sensation and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of craving is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of craving, so this utter purity of craving and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of grasping is owing to the utter purity of delusion, [F.260.a] and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of grasping, so this utter purity of grasping and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the rebirth process is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the rebirth process, so this utter purity of the rebirth process and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of birth is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of birth, so this utter purity of birth and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of aging and death is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of aging and death, so this utter purity of aging and death and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.520 “The utter purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of generosity, so this utter purity of the perfection of generosity and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this utter purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.260.b] of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this utter purity of the perfection of tolerance and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this utter purity of the perfection of perseverance and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this utter purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this utter purity of the perfection of wisdom and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.521 “The utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of [F.261.a] the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this utter purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this utter purity of the emptiness of great extent and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this utter purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this utter purity of delusion [F.261.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this utter purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this utter purity of [F.262.a] delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this utter purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this utter purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this utter purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this utter purity of the emptiness of essential nature and this utter purity [F.262.b] of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this utter purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.522 “The utter purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this utter purity of the applications of mindfulness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the correct exertions is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the correct exertions, so this utter purity of the correct exertions and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this utter purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the faculties is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the faculties, so this utter purity of the faculties and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity [F.263.a] of the powers is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the powers, so this utter purity of the powers and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this utter purity of the branches of enlightenment and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the noble eightfold path is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the noble eightfold path, so this utter purity of the noble eightfold path and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.523 “The utter purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this utter purity of the truths of the noble ones and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the meditative concentrations, so this utter purity of the meditative concentrations and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion [F.263.b] is owing to the utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this utter purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the formless absorptions, so this utter purity of the formless absorptions and this

utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the liberations is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the liberations, so this utter purity of the liberations and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, so this utter purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, so this utter purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation and this utter purity of delusion [F.264.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the extrasensory powers, so this utter purity of the extrasensory powers and utter purity of delusion is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The utter purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the meditative stabilities, so this utter purity of the meditative stabilities and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this utter purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.524 “The utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, so this utter purity of the powers of the tathāgatas and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the fearlessnesses, so this utter purity of the fearlessnesses and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.264.b] The utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this utter purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great loving kindness is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of great loving kindness, so this utter purity of great loving kindness and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of great compassion is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of great compassion, so this utter purity of great compassion and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this utter purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.525 “The utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, so the utter purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to [F.265.a] the utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this utter purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The utter purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the utter purity of delusion, and the utter purity of delusion is owing to the utter purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this utter purity of all-aspect omniscience and this utter purity of delusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B15]

26.526 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of ignorance, and the purity of ignorance is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of ignorance and this purity of formative predispositions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, and the purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of formative predispositions and this purity of consciousness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of name and form is owing to the purity of consciousness, and the purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of name and form, so this purity of consciousness and this purity of name and form are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the six sense fields is owing to the purity of name and form, and the purity of name and form is [F.265.b] owing to the purity of the six sense fields, so this purity of name and form and this purity of the six sense fields are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensory contact is owing to the purity of the six sense fields, and the purity of the six sense fields is owing to the purity of sensory contact, so this purity of the six sense fields and this purity of sensory contact are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sensation is owing to the purity of sensory contact, and the purity of sensory contact is owing to the purity of sensation, so this purity of sensory contact and this purity of sensation are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of craving is owing to the purity of sensation, and the purity of sensation is owing to the purity of craving, so this purity of sensation and this purity of craving are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of grasping is owing to the purity of craving, and the purity of craving is owing to the purity of grasping, so this purity of craving and this purity of grasping are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the rebirth process is owing to the purity of grasping, and the purity of grasping is owing to the purity of the rebirth process, so this purity of grasping and this purity of the rebirth process are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of birth is owing to the purity of the rebirth process, and the purity of the rebirth process is owing to the purity of birth, so this purity of the rebirth process and this purity of [F.266.a] birth are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aging and death is owing to the purity of birth, and the purity of birth is owing to the purity of aging and death, so this purity of birth and this purity of aging and death are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.527 “The purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the purity of aging and death, and the purity of aging and death is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, so this purity of aging and death and this purity of the perfection of wisdom are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of the perfection of wisdom is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom and this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of perseverance is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration and this purity of the perfection of perseverance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of the perfection of perseverance [F.266.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance and this purity of the perfection of tolerance are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of the perfection of tolerance is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance and this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline and this purity of the perfection of generosity are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.528 “The purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of the perfection of generosity is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of generosity and this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.267.a] the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of emptiness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of the emptiness of emptiness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness and this purity of the emptiness of great extent are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of the emptiness of great extent is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent and this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality and this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena [F.267.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited and this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end and this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion is owing to the purity of [F.268.a] the emptiness of inherent nature, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion and this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature and this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena and this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics [F.268.b] and this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended and this purity of the emptiness of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of essential nature is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of nonentities is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature and this purity of the emptiness of essential nature of nonentities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.529 “The purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities and this purity of the applications of mindfulness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the correct exertions is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of the applications of mindfulness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness and this purity of the correct exertions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, [F.269.a] and the purity of the correct exertions is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, so this purity of the correct exertions and this purity of the supports for miraculous ability are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the faculties is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of the supports for miraculous ability is owing to the purity of the faculties, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability and this purity of the faculties are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the powers is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of the faculties is owing to the purity of the powers, so this purity of the faculties and this purity of the powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of the powers is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, so this purity of the powers and this purity of the branches of enlightenment are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the path is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of the branches of enlightenment is owing to the purity of the path, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment and this purity of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.530 “The purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the purity of the path, and the purity of the path is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, so this purity of the path and this purity of the truths of the noble ones [F.269.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of the truths of the noble ones is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones and this purity of the meditative concentrations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of the meditative concentrations is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, so this purity of the meditative concentrations and this purity of the immeasurable attitudes are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of the immeasurable attitudes is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes and this purity of the formless absorptions are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the eight liberations is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of the formless absorptions is owing to the purity of the eight liberations, so this purity of the formless absorptions and this purity of the eight liberations are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the purity of the eight liberations, and the purity of the eight liberations is owing to the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, so this purity of the eight liberations [F.270.a] and this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness is owing to the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption is owing to the purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness, so this purity of the nine serial steps of meditative absorption and this purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness, and the purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, so this purity of emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness and this purity of the extrasensory powers are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of the extrasensory powers is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, so this purity of the extrasensory powers and this purity of the meditative stabilities are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of the meditative stabilities is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, so this purity of the meditative stabilities and this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways are not two, [F.270.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways is owing to the purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways and this purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, so this purity of the ten powers of the tathāgatas and this purity of the fearlessnesses are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of the fearlessnesses is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, so this purity of the fearlessnesses and this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great loving kindness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge and this purity of great loving kindness are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of great compassion is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of great loving kindness is owing to the purity of great compassion, so this purity of great loving kindness and this purity of great compassion are not two, cannot [F.271.a] be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of great compassion is owing to the purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, so this purity of great compassion and this purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.531 “The purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas, and the purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas is owing to the purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, so this purity of the distinct qualities of the buddhas and this purity of knowledge of all the dharmas are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the purity of knowledge of all the dharmas, and the purity of knowledge of all the dharmas is owing to the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, so this purity of knowledge of all the dharmas and this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path, and the purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path is owing to the purity of all-aspect omniscience, so this purity of the knowledge of the aspects of the path and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.532 “Moreover, Subhūti, the purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.271.b] is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, [F.272.a] this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.533 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.272.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.534 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to [F.273.a] the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.535 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this [F.273.b] purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.274.a] the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.536 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact [F.274.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and [F.275.a] are not distinct.

26.537 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings

conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, [F.275.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of wisdom, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of wisdom, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.538 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.276.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.276.b] are no different, and are not distinct.

26.539 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.277.a] is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.540 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, [F.277.b] this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.541 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two,

[F.278.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of tactile consciousness, [F.278.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.542 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, [F.279.a] this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.543 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.279.b] the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection

of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, [F.280.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of meditative concentration, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B16]

26.544 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings [F.280.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-

aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.545 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.281.a] is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the body, and [F.281.b] this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.546 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity [F.282.a] of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.547 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.282.b] of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, [F.283.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.548 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.283.b] linguallly compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact, and this

purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.549 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, [F.284.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings [F.284.b] conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of perseverance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of perseverance, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.550 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.285.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.551 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to [F.285.b] the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.286.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.552 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to [F.286.b] the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.553 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.287.a] is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.554 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact [F.287.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.288.a] The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.555 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, [F.288.b] this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact [F.289.a] is owing to the purity of the perfection of tolerance, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of tolerance, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.556 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions [F.289.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.557 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, [F.290.a] this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.558 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.290.b] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of [F.291.a] the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.559 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to [F.291.b] the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.560 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to [F.292.a] the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact [F.292.b] is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.561 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of

ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.293.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of ethical discipline, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.562 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and [F.293.b] the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of [F.294.a] the perfection of generosity, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.563 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.294.b] of the body is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.564 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of odors, [F.295.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.565 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into [F.295.b] two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two,

are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.296.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.566 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and [F.296.b] this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-

aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.567 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and [F.297.a] this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by

lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.297.b] is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the perfection of generosity, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the perfection of generosity, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B17]

26.568 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity [F.298.a] of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.569 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.298.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.570 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.299.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity [F.299.b] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.571 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.300.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.572 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.300.b] is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.573 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.301.a] is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact,

so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.301.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.574 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.302.a] is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.575 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.302.b] The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.576 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.303.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.577 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity [F.303.b] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.304.a] mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.578 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact [F.304.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this

purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.579 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact [F.305.a] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.305.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.580 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to [F.306.a] the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.581 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.306.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.582 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity [F.307.a] of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.583 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of [F.307.b] the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity [F.308.a] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.584 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.308.b] so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.585 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, [F.309.a] so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact [F.309.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by

corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of external and internal phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.586 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to [F.310.a] the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.587 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of [F.310.b] the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.588 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.311.a] is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.311.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.589 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.312.a] of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.590 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and purity of all-aspect omniscience is not two, cannot be divided [F.312.b] into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact [F.313.a] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.591 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot

be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.313.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of emptiness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of emptiness, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B18] [F.314.a]

26.592 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of [F.314.b] consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.593 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.315.a] is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.594 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.315.b] of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.595 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, [F.316.a] this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, [F.316.b] this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.596 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, [F.317.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.597 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.317.b] the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different,

and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into [F.318.a] two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of great extent, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of great extent, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.598 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to [F.318.b] the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.599 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the nose, and this purity of [F.319.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.600 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.319.b] of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.601 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity [F.320.a] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness [F.320.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.602 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.321.a] is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.603 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, [F.321.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.322.a] is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of ultimate reality, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.604 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings, [F.322.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.605 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.323.a] is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.323.b] and are not distinct.

26.606 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, [F.324.a] this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.607 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, [F.324.b] this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.608 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, [F.325.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, [F.325.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.609 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of [F.326.a] all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of conditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, [F.326.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.610 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to [F.327.a] the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.611 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of [F.327.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.612 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, [F.328.a] so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.613 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.328.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and [F.329.a] this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.614 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, [F.329.b] this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.615 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, [F.330.a] this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings [F.330.b] conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings

conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of unconditioned phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B19]

26.616 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, [F.331.a] this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.617 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the eyes, and this purity [F.331.b] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, [F.332.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.618 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, [F.332.b] this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.619 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity [F.333.a] of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, [F.333.b] so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.620 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, [F.334.a] so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.621 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, [F.334.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, [F.335.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of the unlimited, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of the

unlimited, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.622 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of perceptions, [F.335.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.623 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.336.a] The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.624 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.336.b] of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.337.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.625 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.337.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.626 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the [F.338.a] emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of [F.338.b] corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.627 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned [F.339.a] by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this [F.339.b] purity of the emptiness of that which has neither beginning nor end, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.628 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.340.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.629 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.340.b] the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.630 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.341.a] and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.631 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, [F.341.b] this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, [F.342.a] this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.632 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.342.b] so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.633 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by [F.343.a] visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.343.b] and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by

mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonexclusion, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.634 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.344.a] and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.635 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.344.b] is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.345.a] and are not distinct.

26.636 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of tangibles, [F.345.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.637 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.346.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.638 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.346.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not [F.347.a] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.639 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-

aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.347.b] so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of inherent nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.348.a] [B20]

26.640 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings, and this

purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.348.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.641 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, [F.349.a] this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.642 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.349.b] The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.643 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is [F.350.a] owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to [F.350.b] the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.644 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.351.a] The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not [F.351.b] distinct.

26.645 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of

feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, [F.352.a] so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of all phenomena, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.646 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to [F.352.b] the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.647 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of [F.353.a] the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to [F.353.b] the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.648 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of tastes, and this purity of [F.354.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.649 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.354.b] and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.355.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.650 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and [F.355.b] this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.651 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.356.a] the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.356.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of intrinsic defining characteristics, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.652 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.357.a] and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.653 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.357.b] of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.654 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to [F.358.a] the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not [F.358.b] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.655 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no [F.359.a] different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.656 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.359.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity [F.360.a] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.657 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect

omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.360.b] is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of that which cannot be apprehended, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.658 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to [F.361.a] the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.659 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, [F.361.b] so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.362.a] of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.660 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity [F.362.b] of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.661 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.363.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, [F.363.b] this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.662 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, [F.364.a] this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.663 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.364.b] is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.365.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B21]

26.664 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of [F.365.b] perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.665 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.366.a] is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.666 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.366.b] and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity [F.367.a] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.667 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.367.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.668 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.368.a] and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.669 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact [F.368.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, [F.369.a] this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of essential nature, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of essential nature, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.670 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to [F.369.b] the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.671 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.370.a] is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, [F.370.b] so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.672 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity [F.371.a] of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.673 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of visual consciousness, [F.371.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, [F.372.a] so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.674 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity [F.372.b] of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.373.a]

- 26.675 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity [F.373.b] of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this

purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness of an essential nature of nonentities, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.676 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.374.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.677 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.374.b] is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.375.a] The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.678 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-

aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of tastes, [F.375.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.679 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of [F.376.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-

aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of mental consciousness, [F.376.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.680 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.377.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.681 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by [F.377.b] aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the applications of mindfulness, [F.378.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the applications of mindfulness, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.682 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity [F.378.b] of the correct exertions, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.683 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity [F.379.a] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.684 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.379.b] The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.685 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, [F.380.a] this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, [F.380.b] this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.686 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.381.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.687 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.381.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity

of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.382.a] of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the correct exertions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the correct exertions, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B22]

26.688 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.382.b] The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.689 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of [F.383.a] the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.690 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.383.b] the purity of sights, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of [F.384.a] the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.691 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, [F.384.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.692 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.385.a] is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.385.b] is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.693 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to [F.386.a] the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally

compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the supports for miraculous ability, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the supports for miraculous ability, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.694 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not [F.386.b] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.695 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of [F.387.a] the faculties, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, [F.387.b] so this purity of the faculties, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.696 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the faculties, [F.388.a] this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect

omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.697 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.388.b] of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.698 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, [F.389.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, [F.389.b] so this purity of the faculties, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.699 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity

of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, [F.390.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the faculties, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the faculties, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.700 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the powers, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.390.b] of feelings is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the powers, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the powers, this purity of formative predispositions, and this

purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.701 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not [F.391.a] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the powers, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of [F.391.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.702 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the powers, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the powers, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the powers, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the powers, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the powers, [F.392.a] this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the powers, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.703 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.392.b] The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the powers, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.704 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.393.a] is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, [F.393.b] this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.705 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this

purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of [F.394.a] all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.706 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing [F.394.b] to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.707 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, [F.395.a] this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty [F.395.b] is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.708 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of tastes, and this purity [F.396.a] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.709 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and [F.396.b] the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.710 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, [F.397.a] so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of [F.397.b] the branches of enlightenment, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.711 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.398.a] so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the branches of enlightenment, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the branches of enlightenment, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [V21] [F.1.b] [B1]

26.712 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to [F.2.a] the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.713 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, [F.2.b] this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity [F.3.a] of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.714 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.3.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.715 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.4.a] olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.4.b]

26.716 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, [F.5.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this

purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.717 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of [F.5.b] the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact [F.6.a] is owing to the purity of the noble eightfold path, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the noble eightfold path, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.718 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of [F.6.b] the truths of the noble ones, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.719 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of [F.7.a] the tongue, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.720 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.7.b] the purity of odors, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.721 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.8.a] the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, [F.8.b] this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.722 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, [F.9.a] and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.723 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.9.b] of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the truths of the noble ones, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the truths of the noble ones, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.10.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.724 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of consciousness, [F.10.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.725 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the body, and this purity [F.11.a] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.726 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no [F.11.b] different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.727 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two,

are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, [F.12.a] this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.728 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.12.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.13.a] is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.729 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.13.b] the purity of feelings conditioned by

lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative concentrations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative concentrations, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.730 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings, and this purity of [F.14.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.731 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, purity of the ears, and purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.14.b] is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.732 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to [F.15.a] the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.733 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, [F.15.b] so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.16.a] of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.734 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, [F.16.b] this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.735 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.17.a] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the immeasurable attitudes, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the

immeasurable attitudes, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, [F.17.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B2]

26.736 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.18.a] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.737 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of [F.18.b] the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.738 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity [F.19.a] of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.739 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of [F.19.b] all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.20.a] of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.740 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity [F.20.b] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.741 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and [F.21.a] the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.21.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the formless absorptions, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the formless absorptions, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.742 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of [F.22.a] the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.743 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.22.b] is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.744 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the liberations, [F.23.a] this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.745 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.23.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the liberations, [F.24.a] this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.746 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity [F.24.b] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.747 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, [F.25.a] so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the liberations, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the liberations, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.748 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, [F.25.b] this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.749 “The purity of the eyes [F.26.a] is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, [F.26.b] this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.750 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes [F.27.a] is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.751 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of [F.27.b] auditory consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity [F.28.a] of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.752 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact, [F.28.b] so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of linguallly compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.753 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded

sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity [F.29.a] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity [F.29.b] of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the serial steps of meditative absorption, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B3]

26.754 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not

two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.30.a] the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.755 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity [F.30.b] of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.31.a] the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.756 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.31.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.757 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, [F.32.a] this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity [F.32.b] of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.758 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness [F.33.a] gateways to liberation, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact [F.33.b] is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.759 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, [F.34.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded

sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.34.b] the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the emptiness, signlessness, and wishlessness gateways to liberation, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.760 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.35.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.761 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.35.b] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.762 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.36.a] is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

- 26.763 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity [F.36.b] of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.764 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, [F.37.a] so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.37.b] are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.765 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.38.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the extrasensory powers, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the extrasensory powers, this

purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.766 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is [F.38.b] owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.767 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.39.a] the purity of the ears, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.768 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of sights, [F.39.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.40.a]

26.769 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of [F.40.b] the meditative stabilities, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.770 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect

omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, [F.41.a] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.771 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity [F.41.b] of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of

feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the meditative stabilities, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the meditative stabilities, [F.42.a] this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B4]

- 26.772 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to [F.42.b] the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.773 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, [F.43.a] cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.774 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to [F.43.b] the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.775 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, purity of olfactory consciousness, and purity of all-aspect omniscience is not [F.44.a] two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.776 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity [F.44.b] of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.777 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity [F.45.a] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, [F.45.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the dhāraṇī gateways, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the

dhāraṇī gateways, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.778 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of [F.46.a] the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.779 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of [F.46.b] the nose is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.780 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not [F.47.a] two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of mental phenomena, [F.47.b] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.781 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, purity of gustatory consciousness, and purity [F.48.a] of all-aspect omniscience is not two, cannot be divided into two, is no different, and is not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.782 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the

tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of [F.48.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are [F.49.a] not distinct.

26.783 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into

two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers [F.49.b] of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the powers of the tathāgatas, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.784 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings, [F.50.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.785 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, [F.50.b] so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.786 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, [F.51.a] so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the [F.51.b] fearlessnesses, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.787 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, [F.52.a] are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.788 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, [F.52.b] and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.789 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity [F.53.a] of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by [F.53.b] corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the fearlessnesses, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the fearlessnesses, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.790 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of perceptions, [F.54.a] and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.791 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of [F.54.b] all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two,

cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.792 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into [F.55.a] two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of [F.55.b] all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.793 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.56.a] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.794 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided [F.56.b] into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.795 “The purity of [F.57.a] feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by [F.57.b] lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of the kinds of exact knowledge, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [B5]

26.796 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so [F.58.a] this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.797 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity [F.58.b] of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the nose, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the nose, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the tongue is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the tongue, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the tongue, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the body is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the body, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the body, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the mental faculty is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the mental faculty, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of the mental faculty, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.798 “The purity of sights is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience [F.59.a] is owing to the purity of sights, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of sights, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of sounds is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of sounds, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of sounds, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of odors is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of odors, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of odors, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tastes is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tastes, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of tastes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of tangibles is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tangibles, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of tangibles, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental phenomena is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental phenomena, so this purity of great loving [F.59.b] kindness, this purity of mental phenomena, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.799 “The purity of visual consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visual consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of visual consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of auditory consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of auditory consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of auditory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of olfactory consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of olfactory consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of olfactory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of gustatory consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of gustatory consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of gustatory consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. [F.60.a] The purity of tactile consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of tactile consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of tactile consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mental consciousness is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mental consciousness, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of mental consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.800 “The purity of visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity [F.60.b] of nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.801 “The purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of [F.61.a] feelings conditioned by visually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings conditioned by aurally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings conditioned by nasally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings conditioned by lingually compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, [F.61.b] so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings conditioned by corporeally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact is owing to the purity of great loving kindness, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, so this purity of great loving kindness, this purity of feelings conditioned by mentally compounded sensory contact, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.802 “The purity of physical forms is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of physical forms, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of physical forms, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of feelings is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of feelings, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of feelings, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of perceptions is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of perceptions, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of perceptions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of formative predispositions [F.62.a] is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of formative predispositions, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of formative predispositions, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of consciousness is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of consciousness, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of consciousness, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct.

26.803 “The purity of the eyes is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the eyes, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of the eyes, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the ears is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing to the purity of the ears, so this purity of great compassion, this purity of the ears, and this purity of all-aspect omniscience are not two, cannot be divided into two, are no different, and are not distinct. The purity of the nose is owing to the purity of great compassion, and the purity of all-aspect omniscience is owing

